New Deal Opposed to Recovery, Dewey Says In Milwaukee Address

Has 'a Vested Interest in Continued Depression', New York Republican Candidate Asserts

Milwaukee, March 29. (AP)—Thomas E. Dewey, campaigning for the Republican presidential nomination, declared tonight that the New Deal has "a vested interest in continued depression" and does not want recovery.

"It is the first administration in our history which has had a vested interest in continued unemployment," the New York district attorney said in a prepared speech which also was broadcast over a Wisconsin radio network.

Praising Wisconsin as a leader in social progress, he told this state's voters that "the country rightfully looks to you for continued leadership in its fight to win its way out of this New Deal depression."

"Dewey and Senator Vandenberg of Michigan have entered delegate slates in the Republican column in Wisconsin's presidential preference primary next Tuesday. President Roosevelt and Vice-President Garner are entered in the Democratic column."

"New Deal Depression"
"For it is just that — a New Deal depression," Dewey said. "Asserting that the United States had lagged behind other nations in recovering from the world-wide depression of 1929, he continued:

"The gravity of our situation lies in the fact that the New Deal enjoys more power the longer the depression is continued. x x x

"The first step toward recovery is to take the government out of the hands of those who do not want recovery. Put it in the hands of those who believe in the future of the country and who want recovery."

The New Yorker declared that the New Deal "has no faith in the future of this country."

"It has no faith in the system of private enterprise that has made this country great," he went on. "It believes that system has broken down. It believes our economy has gone to seed. In place of free enterprise, the New Deal believes in government domination of business. It relies upon unlimited government spending in place of private enterprise that makes jobs."

Enterprise Choked
"The hostility of the New Deal toward business has choked the spirit of enterprise. The life blood of our economy is in new enterprise."

Suspect Held in Slaying of Young College Student

Man Questioned in Phila. in Probe of Murder of Rachel Taylor

State College, Pa., March 29. (AP)—A suspect, picked up on the tip of an alert negro porter, was questioned tonight by hard-working police pursuing every possible clue in the state-wide search for the sex-maniac slayer, of chubby Rachel Taylor, 17-year-old co-ed.

The porter in Philadelphia noticed the suspect's clothing was stained and notified police after hearing him say he had arrived in Philadelphia yesterday from State College. He was described by officers as a youthful-looking man, about 20 years of age.

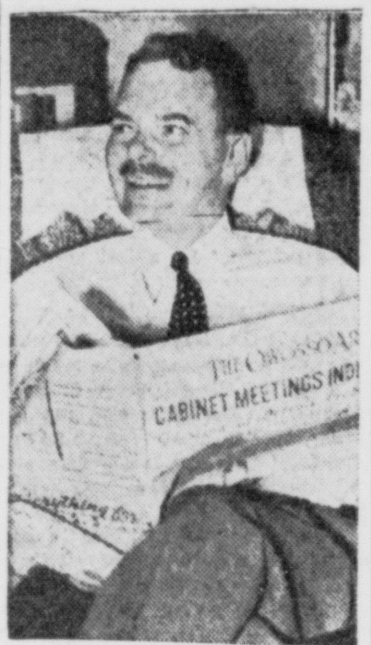

Philadelphia detectives questioned the man several hours and then turned him over to state police for more interrogation.

It was not announced whether stains on his clothing had been identified. No charge was filed against him. Colonel Lynn Adams, police commissioner, said he would be taken to the Rockview police barracks near here.

Colonel Adams also asserted there was "nothing to" reports a confession.

Dewey's Pilots Make Bid for Aid In West Virginia

Col. Roosevelt and C. P. Sisson Believe His Chances Are Good

Charleston, W. Va., March 29. (AP)—Thomas E. Dewey's campaign managers described him before 250 West Virginia Republicans tonight as "our best vote-getter" but withheld any hint whether the New York district attorney will file in the May 14 primary.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt and Charles P. Sisson of Rhode Island, a co-manager of Dewey's campaign, made no mention in addresses on their candidate's probable action in West Virginia and Sisson said later no decision had been made.

If the New Yorker is to file, it must be done personally and before April 14, thirty days ahead of the primary. There was some indication the decision might be made shortly after next week's primary in Wisconsin.

No Candidates in Field
No presidential aspirants have filed in the state and under a 1939 law candidates for delegates to the national convention need not state whether they will support the popular primary choice.

Meeting party leaders and candidates from every section of the state, Roosevelt declared that the candidate is an exemplification of the "American way."

The dinner was given by National Committeeman Walter S. Hallanan and State Chairman Robert H. C. Kay.

Hallanan, who said in the invitations that he wanted to see an unimpaired state delegation sent to the national convention, told the Dewey representatives that "if your

Bruce Says He Will Help Forgotten Men And Women Above 40

Baltimore, March 29. (AP)—Howard Bruce, Democratic candidate for the nomination as United States senator, said tonight that if elected he would do something for the "forgotten men and women in industry" who find themselves out of employment after they reach forty-five years of age.

Termining it "one of the ruthless wrongs of our industrial and governmental employment system," Bruce said in a broadcast address that these middle-aged workers had been listed as "unemployable" but at the same time could not qualify for old age pensions or for benefits under the Social Security act.

"The tendency of industrial development in recent years has been to put more and more premium on youth in industry," Bruce said this had been brought about by a drift away from craftsmanship toward mass production, and "a tremendous turnover in labor."

Roosevelt Trade Agreement Plan Wins 44 to 41 In Senate Vote

Amendment by Senator Pittman Rejected by Three Majority after Bitter Battle

Washington, March 29. (AP)—A three-vote majority in the Senate today saved the Roosevelt trade pact program from an amendment which, administration spokesmen had said, would "nullify" the effort to lower trade barriers by agreements with foreign nations.

By a vote of 44 to 41, the chamber rejected an amendment by Senator Pittman (D-New) requiring that future reciprocal trade pacts be submitted to the Senate for ratification by a two-thirds vote.

The defeat of this amendment cleared the way for action next week upon the pending legislation authorizing a three-year continuation of the present trade agreements act, under which the administration can reduce tariffs as much as fifty percent in return for concessions are not subject to Senate action.

Encourages Administration
Today's vote encouraged administration forces to believe that the continuation bill would go through without difficulty.

The decision on the Pittman resolution was taken amid scarcely-concealed excitement. After a week of cloak room maneuvering—all had known for days the vote would be close—a hushed Senate answered the call of the roll at 4 o'clock.

Chairman Harrison (D-Miss) of the Finance Committee, in charge of the bill, filled out a Senate tally sheet as the vote proceeded in see-saw fashion, giving the advantage first to one side and then to the other. Pittman, sensing defeat, sat red-faced and erect in his chair.

Democratic Lines Split
Democratic party lines were split on the tally. Eighteen Democrats supported the Pittman amendment, while forty-three were against. Republicans voted solidly for the amendment.

So important did the administration consider the issue that there had been talk of a presidential veto, in the event that the amendment had been approved. Senate ratification had been denounced by administration spokesmen as offering so many opportunities for delay, obstruction and log-rolling as to make a continuation of the program useless. Pittman demanded ratification as the only constitutional procedure.

The debate which preceded the vote—a full week of discussion—was highly legalistic. It touched but infrequently upon such questions as the effect, past and future, of the program on various local industries and products. This was obviously, however, an important factor in the determination of a number of votes.

Opposition Is Strong
A number of western senators, contending that cattle had been hurt and that copper might be hurt by restricting the program. Many farm state legislators, responding to the plea of farm organizations that agriculture had been injured by the New Deal's tariff-making system, voted against the administration. Other local influences of a similar nature were apparent.

The debate was concerned more with the constitutionality of the trade agreements act. It raised, principally, this question: Is a trade agreement a treaty, something less than that, or a law?

Winebrenner Riles Largely Attended

Frederick, Md., March 29. (AP)—Funeral services were held today at All Saints Episcopal church for David C. Winebrenner, 3rd, former secretary of state and Frederick county Democratic party leader.

Most of the high-ranking Democratic officials of Maryland, headed by Governor Herbert R. O'Connor, attended and the huge crowd overflowed the church proper.

After the services conducted in the church by the Rev. Malcolm S. Taylor, burial rites were held in Mt. Olivet cemetery here.

A profusion of flowers banked high around the casket, and friends said the funeral was probably the largest ever held in Frederick.

2 Confiscated Russian Ships Given to France Increase Tense Outlook

Moscow Asserts Great Britain Is Determined To Blacken Russia in Eyes of the World

By DREW MIDDLETON
London, March 29. (AP)—Relations between Britain and Soviet Russia became increasingly shaky tonight as the British handed over to their French ally two confiscated Soviet freighters and got ready to round up German ships attempting to dash from the Netherlands East Indies to Vladivostok.

Soviet sources, on the other hand, outlining the Russian position, emphasized two factors:

1. Foremost, "despite the newspapers," Russia has no political or military commitments with Germany and is not her ally.

2. Russia is eager for "increased trade and friendly relations with Great Britain," although no pact is being formulated.

But it seems to be evident, the Russian sources added, that Britain and France have embarked on a "treat Russia Rough" campaign and that a deliberate attempt is being made to "blacken Soviet Russia in the eyes of the British people and the world."

Two Ships for France
The two Russian merchantmen, disposition of which lay at the heart of the controversy, are the 2,492-ton Vladimir Mayakovsky, released by the British today to the French navy "for administrative reasons" and expected to be taken from Hong Kong to Hanoi or some other French Indo-China port.

The ships, laden with metals vital in the manufacture of munitions and arms, were intercepted in the Far East while enroute to Vladivostok. The Vladimir Mayakovsky came from the United States and Mexico.

The British said the French navy has "more bases in the Pacific," thus is better able to continue contraband examination of the vessels.

Naval men then took sharp notice of reports that at least twenty German freighters were getting under way to dash from Netherlands East Indies to Vladivostok with cargoes meant for Germany.

Concerning British-Russian trade, a reliable Russian source here declared: "It is not true that a British-Russian trade pact is being formulated."

Sought Trade Agreements
"The truth is," he said, "when Russian Ambassador Ivan Maisky discussed detention of the Russian ships with British Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs R. A. Butler on Feb. 22 and with Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax on March 27, he emphasized on each occasion Russia's eagerness for increased commerce with Britain and her willingness to frame trade agreements with Britain or any nation."

Attacks upon Catholics Resented By Supreme Court Justice Hughes

Washington, March 29. (AP)—An attorney's contention that religious freedom includes the right to play to Catholics a phonograph record attacking their church was sharply questioned in the Supreme Court today by Chief Justice Hughes.

The chief justice, son of a Baptist minister, asked whether Catholics were not entitled to protection against "scurrilous denunciation of their most cherished faith."

"Is there no limit at all to what you can do when you think you are worshipping God?" he demanded, his voice vibrant with feeling.

The case before the court was the conviction of three persons at New Haven, Conn., on a charge of violating a state law prohibiting the solicitation of funds for any alleged religious, charitable or philanthropic cause without permission from the county public welfare council.

The trio — Newton Cantwell and his sons, Jesse, 16, and Russell, 18—contended they worshipped God by going from door to door and playing phonograph records which explained the Bible. They said money was received for literature,

Jesse Cantwell also was convicted on a charge of breach of the peace as a result of playing to two Catholics a record calling the Catholic church a "racket," a "wicked power," and a "fraud and deception."

When Hayden Covington, attorney for the Cantwells, argued that Jesse was within his rights in playing the record the chief justice leaned forward in his chair and asserted:

Rights of Catholics
"I suppose these Catholics have some right of religious freedom also. I suppose they have the right to be left alone and not to be assaulted with scurrilous denunciation of their most cherished faith. What do you say to that?"

"I say we are right," Covington shot back.

It was then that the chief justice asked if there was no limit at all on the conduct of those who thought they were worshipping God.

"There is no limit so far as this record is concerned," Covington replied,

PEACE! THAT'S FUNNY

Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles returns to Washington in a jovial mood after his fact-finding tour of the European capitals. Parrying the barrage of questions fired at him about his trip.

Immediate Peace Prospects Poor, Roosevelt Says

President Breaks Official Silence on Welles's Tour

Washington, March 29. (AP)—President Roosevelt, breaking the official silence on Sumner Welles's findings abroad, said today that there was "scant immediate prospect for the establishment of any just, stable and lasting peace in Europe."

He predicted, however, that the information brought back by his ambassador-at-large would be of the greatest value when the time comes for peace.

In a statement read to his press conference, the chief executive said that Welles's trip to Rome and the belligerent capitals had resulted "in a clarification of the relations between the United States and the countries which he visited."

Better Understanding Now
He added that he believed it would "assist in certain instances in the development of better understanding and more friendly relations" and would be "of the greatest value

Father Dies in Futile Effort To Save Three Children

Portsmouth, O., March 29. (AP)—A father died today in a heroic but futile fight to save three children from flames that engulfed their rural home.

Shoving aside his own father, who tried to restrain him, Raymond Leedy, 36, plunged into his blazing home after a daughter and two sons. The four bodies were found on a bed, the father sprawled across Betty and Charles, both 4, and Junior, 2.

Mrs. Leedy and another daughter, 7-year-old Delores, were burned so critically that hospital attaches feared they would not survive. A fifth child, two-month-old Mary Lou, was saved when her mother reached through a window and snatched her from a bed.

Investigators said a can of oil exploded while Leedy built a fire in the kitchen stove to prepare breakfast.

Molotov Voices Russia's Desire To Slay Neutral In Europe's War

But Soviet Premier also Warns Western Allies They Are 'Playing with Fire' in Near East

By WITT HANCOCK

Moscow, March 29. (AP)—Premier-Minister Vyacheslav Molotov proclaimed tonight Soviet Russia's desire to "maintain our neutrality, and refrain from any participation in the war" in Europe, but flatly warned the western Allies that they are "playing with fire" with their armies in the near east.

He declared Russia does not intend to wrest her lost province of Bessarabia from Rumania "by war."

In a speech highly critical of Britain and France and with some thrusts at the United States, Molotov told the Supreme Soviet, Russia's legislature, that the Soviet union "will continue our policy whether anybody likes or dislikes it."

High points of his review of foreign policy and international developments included:

Latest Developments

The United States—Russian-United States relations "have not improved of late" but they "have not become worse unless we take into consideration the so-called moral embargo against the Soviet union which, now that peace with Finland has been concluded, is devoid of any significance."

Great Britain and France—"they do not like our policies. They want us to fight Germany in order to further their imperialistic aims. The U. S. S. R. will never be a tool of any country."

Germany—"Soviet-German relations were firmly proved in the Polish campaign."

The Near East—"In Syria and the Near East there is a suspicion of activities of the eastern army of the western powers x x x. We must be vigilant against any attempts to use these troops for a purpose hostile to the Soviet union. The danger of playing with fire should be apparent to them. Our relations with Turkey and Iran are regulated by non-aggression pacts."

Britain and France have assembled a huge force in the Near East, according to some estimates as high as 500,000 men under command of French General Maxime Weygand.

No War over Bessarabia
"We have not recognized the seizure of Bessarabia by Rumania but we have never demanded its return. The Soviet Union, however, does not mean to regain this by war and there has been no worsening in our relations with Rumania."

"Japan must realize that the Soviet Union will not tolerate any violation of her interests. Only if this is understood can our relations with Japan develop satisfactorily."

Turning to the war with Finland, Molotov said the conflict "was not simply a clash with Finnish troops."

"The matter was more complicated. We were fighting not merely Finnish troops but the combined

Berlin Releases Series Of Papers in Effort To Prove American Enmity

Sixteen Documents Alleged To Have Been Seized in Poland also Involve Ambassador Kennedy and Indirectly President Roosevelt in Move To Defeat German Nation; Nazi Press Bitter

By EDWIN SHANKE

Berlin, March 29. (AP)—Official Germany tonight exploded a paper bombshell of sixteen documents declared to have been taken from the foreign office archives of conquered Poland, in which Polish envoys to Washington, Paris and London are quoted as attributing these pre-war beliefs, actions and policies to two American ambassadors and, by indirection, to President Roosevelt:

To William C. Bullitt, ambassador to Paris: the conviction that the United States would "finish" a European conflict on the Allies' side.

To Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador to London: a promise to press upon the British leaders "the necessity of helping Poland at once with cash."

To President Roosevelt (apparently the Polish envoy's own opinion, without any quotation from the president): "The desire to distract America from domestic problems and, 'by conjuring up a war psychosis and conjuring up danger in Europe, he wanted to persuade the American people to accept America's enormous preparedness, program, a program which goes beyond defense needs.'"

GERMANS LIMIT COMMENT

Official German spokesmen, in handing out the documentation at the foreign office, limited their comment to saying the documents "throw an interesting light on the part which American policy played in bringing about the present war."

The Nazi press, however, accused Bullitt and Kennedy of "using all their influence to aggravate the atmosphere of hostility in Europe" before the war broke out.

CHARGED WITH OFFERING U. S. AID FOR ALLIES

All but one of the documents are in typewritten Polish. Photographic copies of the alleged originals were furnished to the press. The sixteenth document purported to be a 1935 memorandum of Anthony Eden, the British statesman, on a conversation with Marshal Pilsudski of Poland.

The documents, in the main, covered the period leading up to the March 31, 1939 Allied pledge of aid to Poland in case she were attacked, and extended some months thereafter. Mostly they constituted secret reports from the Polish diplomatic envoys to the then Polish foreign secretary, Col. Joseph Beck.

Roosevelt Sarcastic
(President Roosevelt, in Washington, told newspapermen in response to questions about the documents that all European propaganda should be taken with three grains of salt.

(Secretary Hull said the state department gave not "the slightest credence" to documents released in Berlin.

"The statements alleged," said the secretary of state, "have not represented at any time the thought or the policy of the American government.")

There was immediate conjecture in Berlin diplomatic circles as to whether the substance of this third German "White Book" had been revealed to Sumner Welles, President Roosevelt's fact-finder, when he was here.

There also was speculation as to whether the documents were released as an implied answer to Mr. when he said the world must seek Roosevelt's speech of March 16, a "moral basis" for peace.

Goering's Opinion
At any rate, the National Zeitung, which is close to Field Marshal Hermann Goering, said tonight: "Germany now is laying on the table proof of the war guilt of the western powers, as well as their open and secret stooges."

President Says To Take Statement with Three Grains of Salt

Washington, March 29. (AP)—A series of sharp denials tonight greeted Germany's publication of documents purporting to show that the United States helped bring on the European war.

Secretary of State Hull issued a statement saying that he did not place "the slightest credence" in the diplomatic conversations mentioned in the documents and that the papers did not represent "in any way" the foreign policy of the United States.

A few hours after President Roosevelt had told reporters that propaganda from Europe should be taken with several grains of salt, William C. Bullitt, American Ambassador to France, and Count Jerzy Potocki, Polish Ambassador to the United States, issued formal denials of the statements attributed to them in the documents.

Lake Charles, La., March 29. (AP)—A jury tonight decided that Mrs. Annie Beatrice Henry, charged with the St. Valentine's Day slaying of a salesman who befriended her, should be hanged.

Plumbing Groups Indicted under Anti-Trust Laws

Justice Department Names 102 Defendants As Conspirators

Cleveland, March 29. (P)—The justice department today struck at the plumbing industry in an indictment charging 102 defendants—manufacturers, jobbers and unions—conspired to restrain trade in violation of anti-trust laws.

An end to "unnecessary and costly steps" pictured by the indictment would mean a twenty to twenty-five per cent saving to consumers, the government said.

It was the most far-reaching indictment so far returned in the anti-trust division's drive to rid the building industries of allegedly monopolistic practices.

Among the twelve manufacturers indicted were the "big three" of the industry—Crane Co., Kohler Co., and American Radiator and Standard Sanitary Corp.

Kohler Indicted

Walter J. Kohler, chairman of the Kohler Co. and former governor of Wisconsin, was among the fifty-three individuals indicted and subject, in event of conviction, to fines of $50,000 each, a year's imprisonment or both.

Charles B. Nolte of Chicago, president of Crane Co., and Henry M. Reed, Ben Avon Pa., president and chairman of American Radiator, likewise were named.

Also indicted were the National Association of Master Plumbers in the United States, encompassing 7,000 employers of journeymen plumbers and the United Association of Journeymen Plumbers and Steam Fitters, an American Federation of Labor Affiliate having 600 local unions throughout the country.

Distribution Questioned

The grand jury said defendants conspired to effect a "restricted system of distribution" under which "plumbing supplies are sold by the manufacturer to the jobber, resold by the jobber to the master plumber and resold by the master plumber to the consumer."

Under this system, the indictment declared, "both the jobber and the master plumber exact a charge in connection with the sale and distribution of plumbing supplies, the master plumber being engaged in both the sale and the installation of the said supplies and exacting a charge on each operation although he performs no services in connection with the sale."

Grand jurors declare defendants conspired and blacklisted those who refused to fall in line with the "restricted system of distribution."

The honor guests were about two hours late in arriving because of adverse flying conditions. They caught a late plane from New York to Pittsburgh and were rushed to Charleston in a private plane.

Arthur Vanderbilt, another Dewey advocate, was forced to forego the meeting because of travel conditions.

Roosevelt, emphasizing Dewey's small-town upbringing, declared: "Dewey working for each dollar, and the only way to learn what a dollar is, is to work for it—and if you work for it, you don't go scattering it all over the country in boondoggling."

Answering charges of inexperience, the speaker pointed to Dewey's "able administration" of the largest district attorneyship in the country, New York, and attributed the success there to the ability to surround himself with competent aides, "the best he could find."

This would be carried out in Washington if Dewey is elected, said Roosevelt, adding: "Why if the entire present cabinet—with the possible exception of Secretary of State Hull—resigned, it wouldn't even create a vacancy."

"The Finnish war indeed was a welcome opportunity for a number of imperialist states to embark on war against the Soviet Union. Despite all these efforts the strength and determination of the Red army converted the war into a glorious victory."

Molotoff placed Russian losses in the Finnish war at 48,645 killed and 158,863 wounded and Finland's at not less than 60,000 killed and 250,000 wounded.

(Finnish Field Marshal Baron Carl Gustave Mannerheim had estimated the Finnish dead at 15,000 and Russian dead at 200,000. Scandinavian observers figured Russian casualties at 250,000 dead and 250,000 wounded and estimated Finnish casualties at 30,000 dead and 35,000 wounded.)

Gleaming new and ready for dedication ceremonies, this is Hagerstown's City Hall, a beautiful contrast to the 127-year-old structure it replaced. The four-story building, which cost $410,000, will be dedicated tomorrow. It was built on the site of the old city hall.

Bullitt Quoted as Aligning U. S. With Allies To "Finish" the War

"White Book" (the third of the war from Germany) as a world sensation, because "all those men of prominence and official position who belong to the enemy camp and who can claim for themselves to have involved the world in this war, through carefully prepared acts, figure in it."

"Especially noteworthy in this connection is the faithful record which American diplomats, especially those stationed in the most important posts in Europe, assumed. There can be no doubt after taking cognizance of these Polish documents that these American representatives used all their influence, the strength of which they knew ponderously how to underscore, to aggravate the atmosphere in Europe."

Bullitt against Appeasement
The documentation attributes to American diplomacy and especially to Bullitt, opposition to any appeasement of the totalitarian states by Great Britain, through compromise.

One bright note in the 48 pages of ambassadorial reports is a quotation attributed to Kennedy in which he describes Mr. Roosevelt's confidence in Kennedy's oldest son, Joseph Jr.

"You can't imagine to what extent my oldest boy, who recently was in Poland, has the ear of the President," the Polish commercial attaché in London allegedly quoted Ambassador Kennedy as saying. "I would say the President believes him more than he does me — possibly because Joe presents his case with such conviction and enthusiasm."

After giving out the documents, German officials said there would be more — later. "This is just the first of a series which will speak for itself," they said.

Excerpts from the documents, as handed out:

Paper labelled confidential report by Count Jerzy Potocki, Polish ambassador in Washington, dated Nov. 1, 1939.

"Bullitt's reports to President Roosevelt and the state department are always studied with attention."

Bullitt "Vehement"

"Bullitt spoke with the greatest vehemence and strong hatred of Germany and Chancellor Hitler. He opined that only strength applied at the close of a war could in the future put an end to Germany's mad expansion. To my question how he viewed the coming war, he replied that the United States, France and Britain must arm up tremendously in order to defy German power."

Report represented as one from Potocki dated Washington, Jan. 12, 1939, asserting hatred of Fascism is growing in the United States, incited by Jewish propaganda which the document says controls radio press, films and magazines nearly 100 per cent.

"President Roosevelt was first to give expression to this hatred for Fascism. He thereby pursued a twofold object: First, he wanted to distract attention of the American public from difficult and complicated domestic problems, especially between capital and labor; second, by conjuring up a war psychosis and conjuring up a danger in Europe, he wanted to persuade the American people to accept America's enormous preparedness program, a program which goes beyond defense needs."

Four Dead, Two Missing and Many Injured in Terrific Wind Storm

By NORMAN WALKER

Pierre Part, La., March 29 (P)—Tornado winds accompanied by a driving rain swept through here at 11 a. m., today leaving four known dead, two missing, thirty-five injured and many others believed still buried in debris of the devastated fishing village.

The dead were Mrs. Nicomede Breaud, 60, Abner Cavalier, 14, Elma Temple, 14 months, and a Mrs. Temple.

Thirty Homes Demolished
Thirty homes were demolished, together with the Catholic church, but the wind missed the new village school house, in which there were more than 300 children.

Dr. Samuel LeBlanc, one of the first physicians to reach the scene from surrounding towns, estimated there were ten dead, thirty-five hurt and at least 110 homeless.

State police, the Red Cross, and state hospital board rushed assistance to the stricken community, which lies far back in the swampland over now almost impassable roads.

The torrential rains continued until long past midnight, impeding rescue work.

Boat Flipped Over

Mrs. Foreman Hebert, who lives on a houseboat, said the boat was flipped over three times and finally beached across the bayou. She was unharmed, as were her two children in school.

Bernie Tourterre, school janitor, and an eye-witness to the destruction of the big, white Catholic church, said it blew up "as if it had been dynamited."

French is the universal language in the village, which is surrounded by an almost unreal landscape. Huge live oaks, living and dead, rise in silhouette against the sky. They are heavily draped with gray-green Spanish moss, which the residents pick, and dry to produce the hair used to pack their mattresses.

Fishing is the only other occupation.

Police Nab Pair Entering Club Through Window

Answer Call of Nearby Residents Who Heard Glass Smashed

Keyser, W. Va., March 29.—Two Keyser men—one a World War veteran—were in the Mineral county jail here today, where charges of "breaking and entering with intent to commit larceny" were booked against them after they were arrested on the point of going in through a broken window in the American Legion club rooms, on the corner of Main and Mozelle streets last night.

They are James R. ("Bob") Bane, 41, of the Limestone section, and C. P. ("Bud") Trenter, 42, of Keyser proper. The pair was arrested at about 1:30 by city patrolman Estle Miers and special officer Leslie Yost, who answered a call from unidentified residents nearby reporting the sound of breaking glass on the Mozelle street side of the building.

Between the time the call was turned in and the police car arrived, the neighbors, whose names were not revealed, told the officers they saw Bane give Trenter a boost up through the window. When Miers and Yost arrived, Bane was still outside. Yost reached over the window sill and, catching hold of Trenter's trousers, yanked him out again.

The police said the two men carried no weapons, and offered no resistance at the time of arrest.

A report that the two men had been questioned this afternoon by Prosecuting Attorney Vernon E. Rankin was spiked late today by the prosecutor himself. "I haven't even talked to them since their arrest," he said to a News representative in a telephone conversation this evening.

The same clubrooms the pair was arrested for entering last night were robbed by burglars who gained entrance in a similar manner several weeks ago. At that time, a can of soup was used to break a pane of glass in a door.

Bane, a World War veteran and an American Legion member, was wounded and gassed in France.

Death by Drowning

Frank Kight, head of a WPA grave-locating project in Mineral county, was called to Covington, Va., this morning by the death by drowning of his sister, Mrs. Maurice Lamb, whose home was near that city.

No details regarding the death of his 56-year-old sister were available here, Kight said early today before he left.

She was the former Miss Elliott Kight, of Keyser.

Surviving are another brother, Harry Kight, Philadelphia, a former Keyser resident; a sister, Mrs. Hudson Yost, Berkeley Springs; and eight children—Maurice, Jr., David Harry, Theodore, Mary, Caroline, Betty and Doris.

Mr. Lamb, husband of the dead woman, was formerly storekeeper for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad here.

Release Farm Maps

J. E. Prettyman, Mineral county agricultural agent, announced today that farm map tracings, overlaid on photographs taken from airplanes flying over eleven counties in the northern and eastern panhandles of West Virginia, will be released to local farmers "about June 1."

The maps, one of which will be given free to each farmer, will show the boundaries of each field on every farm, and its acreage.

Counties in this, the eastern section of the state, where planters are to be furnished maps include: Mineral, Berkeley, Hampshire, Hardy, Jefferson, Morgan and approximately half of Grant.

Northern counties are Ohio, Brooke, Marshall and Hancock.

Master's Degree

Word was received here today of the granting of a master's degree in economics and business administration to Haven D. Umstot, of near Keyser, at West Virginia University, Morgantown.

Umstot, until recently a teacher in Romney high school, is a former Potomac State school student and Beta Iota Sigma fraternity member. He is at present employed in Morgantown in the office of the State Department of Agriculture.

Brief Mention

Mrs. H. W. Miller, Sr., Catonsville, who was called here by the illness of her sister, Mrs. C. Harry Davis, Centre street, Keyser, last week, returned to her home today.

Mrs. Davis, who underwent an operation at Potomac Valley hospital here last Tuesday was reported as "improving nicely."

In the comment by some Soviet sources on what they termed British "evasions" of Malsky's questions on the Selenga and the Vladimir-Mayakovsky.

Misky, they said, had told Butler and Halifax that the ships were state-owned and had given his word their cargoes were intended for the Soviet government and not for re-export to Germany, via Siberia.

Despite these declarations, Soviet officials declared, Great Britain "evaded the issue and turned the ships over to France."

Hull and FDR

would enter the war against Germany if Great Britain and France "bestirred themselves," said:

"The president has already indicated that propaganda of this nature should be taken with several grains of salt."

"This particular piece of propaganda should be taken with even more salt. I have never made to anyone the statements attributed to me."

Potocki's statement:

"The publication by the German government of pretended documents from the Polish foreign office is obviously for propaganda purposes. I deny the allegations attributed to my reports."

"I never had any conversations with Ambassador Bullitt on America's participation in war."

Hull issued this statement:

"I may say, most emphatically, that neither I nor any of my associates in the department of state have ever heard of such conversations as those alleged, nor do we give them the slightest credence. The statements alleged have not represented in any way at any time the thought or the policy of the American government."

President Roosevelt, at his press conference, said he thought everybody should take with a grain of salt any propaganda that is put out in Europe today. He then amended this to say it should be taken with two grains of salt.

Three Grains of Salt

After the president said he had not read the dispatches from Berlin, a correspondent asked if he knew the purport of them. Mr. Roosevelt answered he knew the general purport of them and added that the correspondents should make the two grains of salt into three.

He said he expected to see Ambassador William C. Bullitt before he left next week to return to his post in Paris. Bullitt was prominently mentioned in the Berlin documents as having told the Polish ambassador here the United States would enter a war against Germany if Britain and France bestirred themselves against Germany.

Polish Envoy Silent

Count Potocki, the Polish ambassador to the United States, called at the state department shortly after the press dispatches recounted the publication of the documents in Berlin. He called to seek information, and had no comment to make to reporters beyond saying, "we shall see. We shall see."

Senator Pittman (D-Nev.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told reporters that the German government was attempting to "stir up opposition to the president and create fear in the minds of the people."

Other comment:
Senator Danaher (R-Conn.)—"The source from which documents emanate nowadays certainly is open to suspicion. We don't even know the objectives of our former Allies, much less those of the axis powers."
Senator Pepper (D-Fla.)—"It's German propaganda, and it shouldn't affect our policies in the least."

Immediate Peace

to this government in the general conduct of its foreign relations."

He emphasized again that Welles had not made any peace proposals or commitments and had not received any.

As to the specific information given to Welles by the Italian, German, French, and British governments, Mr. Roosevelt said it would be regarded as entirely confidential, inasmuch as it related to the views and policies of those governments.

"To Mr. Welles go my thanks and full appreciation for carrying out this difficult mission with extraordinary tact and understanding and in accordance with the best American diplomatic traditions."

Confers With Welles

Prior to the press conference, the president was closeted with Secretary Hull and Welles for seventy minutes, presumably receiving from the undersecretary further reports on his six weeks visit abroad. Welles returned yesterday and almost immediately went with Hull to the White House where they remained for an hour and a half.

At his press conference, the president elaborated briefly on the statement that there was "scant, immediate prospect" for a just and stable peace.

Not a Prognostication

He said that this meant just what was said and was not to be taken as a prognostication, because immediate meant immediate and not the distant future, and of course no one could tell from day to day what developments would take place in Europe.

The president's reference to better understanding and more friendly relations resulting in certain instances from Welles's trip was taken to point most directly to Italy, Welles's two visits to Rome, at the beginning and at the close of his European journey, are understood to have opened possibilities of more friendly contact with Premier Mussolini's government.

The president's statement that there was scant chance of immediate peace occasioned little surprise at the capital.

New Deal

prises—the new business ventures. That is the way we replace businesses that die. That is the way we provide growth for the future."

Dewey said that new factories would have been built, new machinery purchased, stores would have been remodeled and new equipment installed, "but the policies of the present administration have stifled this development."

Of the federal budget, he said: "Balancing the budget is a matter of sound and competent administration. Spending for the sake of spending and spending for the buying of votes can be stopped. The New Deal has inflated the federal pay roll from $70,000 to nearly 1,000,000 employees. That can be stopped. x x x

"The budget can be balanced x x x without the sacrifice of any essential service and without depriving the needy of government aid."

Discussing the trade treaty program, Dewey declared that while agricultural exports had increased sixteen per cent since 1933, imports which compete with American agriculture had increased 72 per cent.

"That is what I call selling American agriculture down the river," he said.

Suspect Held

fession has been obtained in the case.

Police tonight picked up a young assistant of the contractor and took his grey automobile for a thorough inspection.

Meanwhile, across the state at Pittsburgh, two men were held for investigation in the case but state police said questioning showed they probably were not involved. One was a convict released with three others from Rockview prison, eleven miles from here, about the time Miss Taylor returned to school early Thursday by bus after an Easter vacation at her home in Wildwood, N. J.

Miss Taylor, shy, brown-haired Freshman in the Home Economics Department at Pennsylvania State College, was horribly beaten and mutilated by her assailant. Her body was found yesterday morning in the driveway three miles east of the campus.

Tax Schemes Continue To Be Hatched by Office Holders

"IT SEEMS," said a reader of The News, "that almost every time you pick up the paper, you learn that some jobholder or other over at Annapolis or Baltimore has figured out a new scheme to gouge the taxpayers."

The remark was made when the reader was glancing over the first page of yesterday's News and saw the dispatch from Baltimore noting that W. Lee Elgin, state commissioner of motor vehicles, had recommended to Governor O'Connor that another examination of the 600,000 automobile and truck drivers of Maryland be ordered, that new tests of the kind be made every three years thereafter and that semi-yearly inspections of cars be required.

The tests would be $1 each and the inspections fifty cents each, making for the former around $600,000 and for the latter approximately $450,000 to be taken from motorists, who are already taxed higher than any other class for the privilege of owning and driving cars.

But, that isn't all of it. The million-dollar gouge is not enough. Elgin would have ten additional investigators to help police find drivers without licenses, ten additional license examiners, extra charges for special license numbers and the creation of still more jobs for persons to destroy old applications for titles and title records.

If there is any other job-creating possibility or expense-increasing plan the commissioner has inadvertently overlooked, he would doubtless be grateful for having it called to his attention. There might be, for example, licenses for garages, twenty or thirty more jobholders to "inspect" them and a bureau with more pay-rollers to look after this phase of the tax black-jacking business. Really, when you come to think of the added possibilities, the commissioner may be placed in a position of extreme moderation. He might be asking for several million dollars more a year from the motorists instead of only a paltry million or two.

All this comes on top of an outrageous state income tax, ranging from five to thirty times as much as last year, which Governor O'Connor has said is already yielding more than is necessary and which he says can be reduced and improved. And it comes also quite soon after one re-examination of motor drivers has enabled the state to take another crack at them.

It does seem, as the reader has remarked, that every energy is bent among state office holders at Annapolis and Baltimore to scheme new tax muling ideas.

If only these office holders should give as much effort toward plans for halting the continued increase in the cost of state government, and what is even more necessary, for effecting economies to reduce those costs, the state and its hard-pressed citizens would fare considerably better.

But, the whole game appears to be that of continually gouging the taxpayer. He is the goat. He is not being forced to pay "all the traffic will bear" but much more than that. It is high time to call a halt to this sort of thing.

Youth Should Not Take Its Fears Too Seriously

ACCORDING TO OLDER FOLK, young people are always happy and carefree. They have the marvelous gift of youth, and under ordinary conditions have many years of health and activity to look forward to. They are not supposed to be troubled by anxious fears for the future, or premonitions of the final end of life.

In a poem by Theresa Helburn a different view of youth is expressed. "I can see her eyes grey with alarm," it reads. In imaginative language it pictures the "hooded future" as clutching at the arm of youth, expressing the thought that young people do worry about their future prospects.

Perhaps this is not surprising. When young people formerly went out into the world, they were practically sure of finding work at once. But many recent graduates cannot find work and are still idle. They have ambition for success and achievement, but what can they do if no one will hire them? But youth has one great advantage that age does not. Youth rebounds quickly from a mood of discouragement. American youth should not take its fears too seriously. Its power for achievement was never greater. Ways will be found for that power to express itself. If youth does not find its opportunity in one direction it will find it in some other.

Sub-Stratosphere Travel Is a Reality at Last

SCIENCE appears to have scored another victory in air transportation with the recent launching of a giant new air transport built to streak through the sub-stratosphere with thirty-six passengers at 210 miles an hour.

The new ship, weighing 38,000 pounds, has been built to fly in a strata of air where wind resistance with its resultant speed-arresting friction is least effective—a strata 20,000 feet up, nearly 4 miles from the earth's surface. This will be made possible by pumping artificial air pressure into the cabin, maintaining the same atmospheric conditions within the ship as though it were flying at an altitude of 6,000 feet.

Two huge fourteen-cylinder engines equipped with fifteen-foot, three-bladed propellers will pull the massive airliner through the sub-stratosphere. To keep the power plants running smoothly, many of the fast-moving parts have been equipped with roller bearings, as has the ship's landing gear and tail wheel which take up the shock of landings as the airliner descends onto airport runways at a rate of descent of up to 800 feet a minute. These bearings, especially built for the purpose, almost eliminate rolling friction, enabling the transport to get under way and take off quickly, even in small airports, with a full load of passengers and three tons of mail and express.

The new ship couples safety with speed to an extent previously unheard of. A new safety device, known as a "tell-tale" panel, keeps a constant check on about fifty of the major instruments and controls used in operating the ship; and other new features eliminate one-third of the controls now found in most transports reducing the possibilities of "pilot error."

This venture is of more than ordinary importance by reason of the safety record just hung up by the nation's leading passenger airline systems, which operated 87,000,000 miles during a year just ended without a single mishap. Such an impressive record means that more people will be using the air passenger service.

Keynes, the Economist, Goes Into Reverse English

PARADOXICALLY, John Maynard Keynes, the British economist whose pump-priming theories are embodied in New Deal practices in the United States, is putting reverse English on those theories in a plan to help the British people do their share in winning the war with Germany.

As contrasted to spending for the purpose of stimulating recovery, he now advocates compulsory saving by men and women of Britain to augment national funds for war purposes, and to cut down private demand for consumable goods. As Keynes retailed his ideas to 250 members of parliament, its purpose is to prevent inflation by higher wages and rising prices.

At the end of the war the availability for spending of a huge lump sum would, according to the Keynes reasoning, stimulate economic readjustment and recovery, in effect being pump-priming on an important scale, but not one as grandiose as that of the New Deal.

After the United States entered the world war, billions of dollars were found for government use through Liberty loans subscribed to on a theoretically voluntary basis. There was, of course, the implication of loss of caste if one did not buy. Another time, financing the conflict by compulsion would certainly be proposed, and might even be put into operation if the government were in the hands of the planners.

What this country really needs, according to the man at the next desk, is a road map which can be opened without everyone first being forced to get out of the car.

A western state is experimenting with cast-iron roadways. Will the pedestrian of the future land with a resounding clang instead of a dull thud?

Scientist believes he may have found a method of removing all dust from coal, we read. He would—just when spring arrives!

Plain Tales from the Hills

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Down there in the southern hills where James Still, the poet lives, the people are different. They eat lean and the poor little farms hug the barren slopes of the hills, and few folk have radio or automobile or telephone, but they do have old conveniences like honesty and courage and humor, and they ask nothing of anybody. And if hard times come they pull in their belts and wait it out till "spring" is in for shore and the timorous whistles lone some. Of such people, among whom he was born and reared, has James Still written his "River of Earth" (Viking), which his publishers call his first novel.

It is not actually a novel. Rather, it is a series of sketches and short stories loosely strung together, about a coal miner and his family, all told through the eyes and eager curiosity of a small boy. They are tender without being mushy, realistic without dirtiness, and the tales in "River of Earth" have captured the affection of the Brower. (Few books a man reads win his heart as this book does. It will be no best seller, but it should have a secure place in the increasing number of books that recreate the America that is vanishing.) James Still has put his heart into these plain tales from his own hills.

John N. Burk, historian and program annotator for the Boston Symphony, has written the first full length biography of Clara Schumann that has ever appeared in America. It is called "Clara Schumann: A Romantic Biography" (Random House) and it seems to the Brower that it should be glowing interesting and valuable to all musicians and lovers of music.

Clara Schumann, trained almost from infancy to the piano, had a concert career of nearly seventy years and was the living symbol of the romantic movement in music. Playing today, she might be out of style, but her spirit and her character would still be a mighty influence on composers and pianists. She was the wife of Robert Schumann, mother of many children, the great friend of Johannes Brahms, and a living inspiration to Chopin, Mendelssohn, and Joachim. Mr. Burk's life of Clara Schumann is both a scholarly contribution and a story of a great woman's sorrows and triumphs.

BOOK ENDS: Somerset Maugham's small book, "Books and You" (Doubleday Doran) is a collection of three articles on his own taste in books. He believes that pleasure is the chief end to be sought from reading and says: "The first thing I want to insist on is that reading should be enjoyable." Which is exactly this Brower's point of view about books, even though he enjoys some books that few other people seem to like and sometimes has only distaste for some best sellers. Vincent Sheean is the most recent of the writers to switch publishers, a habit of the species. In the future Random House will publish his books. Sheean is now busy with rehearsals of his first play, "International Incident." Ernest Hemingway thinks that Meyer Levine's "Citizens" is "one of the best novels I have ever read." Annot Robertson, who wrote "Summer's Lease" (Houghton Mifflin), thinks, "A writer's duty is to be an unbiased umpire watching the game of life, and whatever the mysterious sin against the Holy Ghost may be for other people, for him it is to suggest in his work that anything he has observed—love or death or ambition or sorrow—is nobler or sillier or more enduring or less important than he really believes it to be." A thought that pleases Marsh Maslin.

French Movies Are Coming Up

By EDWIN C. HILL

French moving pictures—"Harvest," "The Baker's Wife," and the like—are becoming increasingly successful in this country. There has been this winter an unusual number of exhibitions by French artists. French couturiers and milliners were jerked out of the army, soon after the war started, their pace or their stitch stepped up, with improved showing in foreign sales, in spite of the war.

And now will come the entire company of the Comedie Francaise, with the trip arranged by the French government, for a two-months' stay in this country, with opening night seats at $100 each. The French, with their ironic insight into human foibles, have a sort of copyright on the Comedie Francaise, as well as the Comedie Francaise—their dramatists and playwrights before and after Voltaire evidence this—and they won't be trying to fool anybody. If their star aggregation of dancers and singers happens to be good propaganda, which it may well be, that will be just so much velvet. As Bernard Shaw remarked to Sam Goldwyn, when Mr. Goldwyn, trying to sign him up for Hollywood, "You may be interested in art but I'm interested in money."

In short, France has to build up exchange credits in other countries, to redress trade balances here and there, and she knows how to do it.

Negotiable Culture

Wars of the modern world differ from the tradition brand in one important aspect. In our age, culture is negotiable, exportable and profitable, and as long as the savage blitzkrieg holds off, the pressure of war economies makes for the wider dispersal of culture around the planet, rather than for its destruction, as in the past.

You see this truth already in evidence, not only in the above citations of imported French drama and art, but in such old manifestations as a cocktail party or a swank luncheon. You will find among the canapes all sorts of exotic fixings, and, dining or lunching out, you will encounter strange and delectable cheeses, new to the American palate. This may not have any precise bearing on "culture," but it is clearly in the field of the art of living and, indisputably, this field is being widened by Europe's grim, totalitarian war—the totalitarian part being especially important.

Not only from France, but from Italy, Turkey and the Levantine countries are coming delicacies which have been enjoyed in the past only by royalty and millionaires. Epicures are now turning handsprings over ineffable Italian cheeses hitherto unknown in America. Italy is trading cheeses for shooting irons.

Is the Broker

Britain is to a large degree the broker, or at any rate the instigator of this enhanced luxury trade around the world. She stakes Turkey to a few million pounds to keep her out of the Russian-German line and helps her get world circulation for her flaps and nuts and other food products, or for textiles and work of fine craftsmanship. Britain got her star, and stayed in business as an empire, when she took Machiavelli's shrewd tip and learned how to deploy credit and raw materials around the world. When, in many countries, gold-supplanted currency was supplanted by fiat money backed by a gun, the old formula was weakened, and England has had to stimulate trade intercourse in new fields, rounding up in complicated triangular or multi-angular deals with something in the kitty for old Dame Albion to use for gun money.

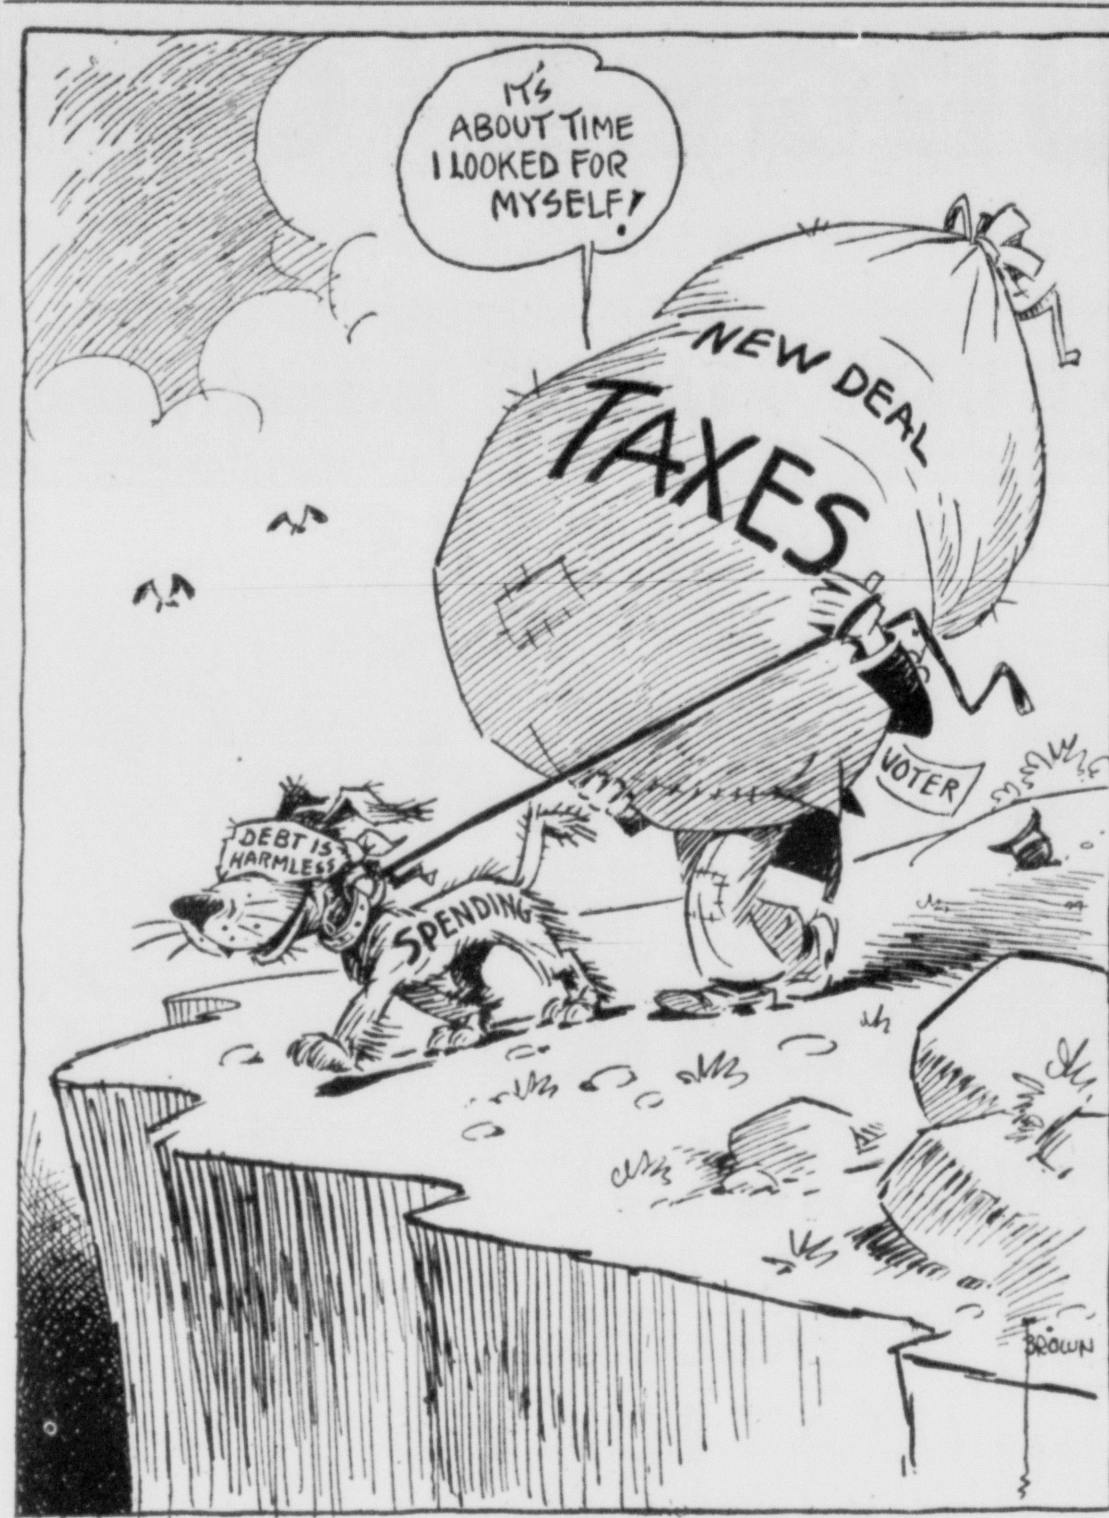

If you have two loaves of bread, Sell one and with the dole Buy hyacinths to feed your soul. It is just as well, perhaps, that the poet has passed on to peaceful groves of Asphodel, without knowing just what a mad world would have one day buy with its surplus loaf. —Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

New Deal Strategists Cannot Evade Stark Fact of Great Unemployment

Maryland Farm Musings

By the Extension Service of the University of Maryland

Maryland dairymen were getting 16.9 pounds of milk per cow in herd on February 1 of this year as compared with 16.1 pounds a year ago, according to the Maryland Crop Reporting Service. The percentage of cows, in herds being milked, was above a year ago, the average, and last month. Grain fed per cow was below a month ago but 3 pound per cow more than a year ago.

Arsenate of lead is the recommended poison for the control of Japanese beetle grubs in the lawn, according to George S. Langford, specialist in insect control for the University of Maryland Extension Service. Three other stomach poisons have been suggested recently as possible materials for use in treating lawns. They are "safened" calcium arsenate, basic copper arsenate, sodium fluo-aluminate (natural cryolite).

Investigation is being made of the effectiveness of the other poisons and a report will be made later in the spring. However, preliminary observations indicate that arsenate of lead is the most satisfactory material.

Dr. M. A. Jull, head of the University of Maryland poultry department, says that the poultry flock should be tested for pullorum disease once, twice, or thrice each year under the supervision of the Maryland Livestock Sanitary Service.

Close to 100 All Stars will convene April 26 for a two-day spring conference at the Vindabona hotel, Braddock Heights. The meetings will start at 2 p. m., on Saturday and the annual dinner will be held that evening. Mrs. Ruth Judy Johnson, of Allegany county, will be the main speaker at the banquet. The All Stars is an honorary group which recognizes outstanding achievement in 4-H Club work in the state.

By FRANKLYN WALTMAN

The New Deal has utilized various stratagems to evade the charge that President Roosevelt's administration has failed in its major task, namely, restoring this country to a sound and lasting economic recovery.

One device has been to compare certain economic statistics for 1932 with those for 1939 and to assert that this proves how successful the New Deal has been, entirely ignoring the fact that the country is much below the level of prosperity and standard of living that existed a decade ago.

But one set of figures which the New Dealers cannot manipulate are those for unemployment. They have tried various explanations, some of which do not make sense, but the cold, stark fact remains that we have with us approximately 10,000,000 unemployed men and women able and willing to work.

Puts Jobless at 10,000,000

Corrington Gill, assistant WPA administrator, is authority for the statement that the country now has 10,000,000 unemployed. It will be recalled that in the 1932 campaign Mr. Roosevelt set the unemployed figure at that time at 10,000,000—so we are just where we were in 1932.

Now Mr. Gill warns that industry cannot absorb "a majority of the country's unemployed within the next five years." In other words, a majority of those now walking the streets looking for jobs are doomed to continue walking the streets fruitfully looking for jobs for the next five years. A majority of those on relief rolls, receiving meager hand-outs from government are doomed, according to Mr. Gill, to remain on those relief rolls, living from hand to mouth.

If this is all the hope and promise the New Deal can offer the country after more than seven years of reckless, unprecedented spending and with all the power he wanted in the president's hands, what a sorry spectacle it is! What a spirit of defeatism pervades the New Deal administrators and leaders!

Of course, Mr. Gill is right if, as he undoubtedly believes, President Roosevelt is re-elected for another term. This would mean that he and his policies would dominate the country for approximately another five years, the period mentioned by Mr. Gill. Indeed, the way things have been going there probably would be as many unemployed at the end of a Roosevelt third term, as there are today and there were in 1932.

But F. D. R. Won't Be Here But Mr. Gill is wrong because Mr. Roosevelt will not be the president of the United States after next January. His New Deal brain trust, tinged as it is with socialistic ideas, will not be running the country and strangling business to death for their own ulterior ends.

Solution of the unemployment problem is not an easy one. None claims that. But if business is given a decent chance to go ahead, if employers can find a way to profitably expand, then the army of unemployed rapidly will dwindle. Men and women who want work again will find it and at living wages, instead of meager relief-roll handouts. How can this be done? Well, in the first place a start toward this goal can be taken by installing in Washington an administration that believes that America is still a land of opportunity and by rejecting an administration which contends that we have come to the end of our economic road. Once the determination to get people back to work takes command in Washington, make fools of ourselves.

things will commence to move, even if nothing else were done. But, of course, a great many other things will be done.

A housing program will be stimulated. Public utilities will be encouraged to expand their plant capacity. Railroads will be placed on a basis of stability and will be enabled to purchase the equipment which they so badly need. Little business will take the risks of experimenting with some of the patents and devices which have lain dormant on its shelves for almost a decade now.

In brief, America will go ahead as it always has gone ahead, by the determination and will of its people, working under a system of free enterprise instead of under the shadows of socialistic experiments.

Not the Way To Put Men to Work

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

The C. I. O. Economic Outlook estimates the country's unemployed in January at 11,936,000, a 14 per cent increase over December. Industrial production at the same time slumped seven per cent, the report states, "with a probable fall of fifteen per cent for February and seventeen for March."

How accurate these estimates are, we do not know. This excerpt from the article discussing the situation indicates the sources from which the figures come:

"These figures have been worked up by the Unemployment division after consideration and examination of all the methods of calculating unemployment. The method has been checked with a number of government economists. It is based on government figures and C. I. O. union reports. We believe the estimate to be as accurate as any available. When the 1940 census is completed, we will have a further check on the accuracy of the figures. The estimate has been carried back as far as January, 1929."

Apparently, the estimate has been made with some care, and in all probability it is as reliable as any other attempt to measure the idle. Whether or not it is approximately correct, however, it is sufficiently close to indicate that the unemployment problem is no nearer solution than it was when the New Deal took over.

About the only thing the New Deal experiment has demonstrated with respect to employment is that the New Deal way is not the way to put men back to work.

A Necessary Thing

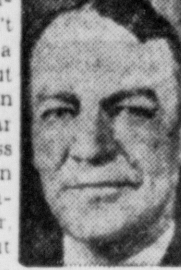

From the Imperial Magazine

Everybody worth while has an inferiority complex about some things—or should have. An inferiority complex is a necessary thing, provided it doesn't get so deep that the owner goes around bearing a sign "kick me." An inferiority complex simply means that a person recognizes his limitations. These are the kind of persons who are nice to have around. They give us fellows with superiority complexes a chance to make fools of ourselves.

Ickes Mission a Rank Failure

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Washington, March 29.—Several letters have come in asking: "How about reports of Mr. Ickes's highly successful peace mission in California?" I didn't know. It seemed a marvel to me, but I have no legman who legs that far and later press reports have been scant and inconclusive. However, a volunteer scout has just air-mailed me the following:

"ing which is better than I could do—so I quote it almost verbatim. "Your sparring partner 'Donald Duck' Ickes has had little luck in playing the pigeon of peace in the Democratic dovehole in California," the letter states. "In fact, California doves are about to go into court on the thing Donald squirted out of Washington about ten days ago: destination unknown. Shortly, he arrived in San Francisco on 'official business.' He was here to give the Democrats the business and to bring harmony among the many divergent factions in the party."

Everybody surprised

"High in the fog, at the Mark Hopkins hotel on Nob Hill, he gathered the lads together, the Olsonites and the McAdoodies. Much to everyone's surprise—it was announced that the waddling one had been successful, that the liberals and the conservatives had agreed to lie down together like Isaiah's lamb and lion—they'd all stand together on a ticket pledged to Mr. Ickes boss for a third term.

"Ickes departed. The fog lifted. The fun began. Feathers began to fall from discontented doves. Manchester Boddy, Los Angeles publisher, was the first to have himself included out. Too much Washington influence, declared the liberal Angelo J. Frank Burke, California radio station owner and political commentator, who was the governor's campaign manager, was the next to go. C.I.O. and Workers Alliance members next prevailed upon California's Lieutenant governor, Eli E. Patterson, to get off the 'harmony ticket.' They wondered wainly most left of all the left-wingers was doing with the dove of peace unless it was to make the bird fly in circles."

Heads Own Slate

"Popular Patterson is now heading a slate of his own and the ticket could not have been redder if the names were illuminated with crimson neon. With Patterson now thumbing his nose at the Ickes list of harmony loving lads, it is expected that Congressman Lee E. Geyer will be the next to take a walk. (He has already done so in the forty-eight hours since this was written.) Finally, word had come from McAdoo himself. 'I'm out of politics and am unwilling to re-enter.'"

"The self-elimination of McAdoo on the Olson-McAdoo slate now leaves the ticket headed by Governor Olson and Olson is headed for political oblivion what with a recall staring him in the face: more than 200,000 signatures of the necessary 300,000 have been secured on recall petitions demanding a new gubernatorial election. With leading Democrats and Republicans secretly backing the movement, the election will be coming along—about July."

Bad Situation

"In other words, the old Quack-Wack-Ickie, has waddled himself into about the worst situation imaginable. He has left at the head of his Roosevelt-for-third-term ticket a governor whom more than 200,000 registered voters have expressed a desire to yank out of office before his term expires. "As if that were not enough, two million ham and egggers, seeing a chance for more nationwide attention, have entered their own slate to contest the Democratic nomination."

Two Grow into Four

"When Horrendous Harold first came to California, there was a possibility of only two slates, the Garner delegation and the proposed Roosevelt ticket. Now there are four. Garner, Olson, Patterson and Ham and Eggs. And Garner, under the guidance of astute Sam Small and Zach Cobb is well out in front; Harmonious Harold!

"While California Democrats are willing to concede the great Ducks ability to quack up a racket, they are now bitterly questioning his talent for sooting down a row. No bird can squawk and croon out of the bill."

DESTINY

They Couldn't Find John Anywhere, and Death Was
One Person Who Refused To Keep His Patience

BY DAVID HENRY

At 3:23 p. m. John Watkins sat huddled in his overcoat on the curb across the street from the Eagle Hills State Bank. He was motionless, but his eyes were fixed upon the door of the building.

Pete Watkins hurried into the kitchen. "I can't find John anywhere," he told John Watkins' wife, Beulah. "I've looked all over town, every place. I've gone through all his hangouts. I can't find him."

Beulah wiped her hands on her apron. Abe Watkins, her elderly brother-in-law sat at the stove.

"He must be around somewhere, Pete," she said. "He wouldn't leave town at a time like this."

"You're sure you've looked everywhere?" Beulah asked anxiously.

"He ain't around anywhere. I tell you," he looked at Beulah. "How's Jenny?" he asked.

"Doctor says she's worse. Cousin Clyde is with her," she replied. She continued to wipe her already dry hands on her apron.

John Watkins huddled figure stiffened as a man emerged from the bank. He recognized the cashier and relaxed. The cashier closed the door and walked swiftly down the street, swept along by the November wind. The time was 3:57.

Dr. MacMillan stood over the sleeping figure of Jennie Watkins. His kindly face was grim as he turned to Dr. Putnam, the brain specialist from Cincinnati. "Well," he said, "there's nothing we can do. It's hopeless. How long would you say she has to live?"

Moments passed before Dr. Putnam spoke. "A day, perhaps. Maybe a couple of hours."

FINESSES are appealing little devices to manufacture tricks by shutting out hostile honors, but the tricks they produce directly are sometimes of minor importance compared to other considerations. In some situations, a finesse can build a vital additional entry for you in your own hand or dummy. On other occasions it may result in the complete destruction of communication between the two hands. Many a time the effects of taking the finesse, even if it works, are more important by far than the finesse itself.

A New Tea Tidbit

Try this new tea tidbit: Pat rich biscuit dough one-third-inch thick. Spread it generously with strained honey mixed with creamed butter and a little cinnamon. Roll, then cut in one-fourth-inch slices. Place in a baking pan and keep in the refrigerator until serving time, then tuck in a moderate oven for seven or eight minutes—until well browned. Pass them hot.

New Pancake Recipe

Add this one to your hot cake recipes. Sift two cups flour and one teaspoon salt into a bowl. Add one and a half cups milk, one tablespoon molasses and one tablespoon melted butter or other shortening. Mix well; then add one well-beaten egg and two teaspoons baking powder. Bake on hot griddle until nicely brown.

Vinegar Darkens Silver

It is advisable not to serve salads or sauces that contain vinegar in silver dishes; the vinegar might darken the silver. There would not be any disagreeable taste but the dish would have to be cleaned after each using. Wooden, crockery or china bowls are the best.

Menus Sometimes Need a Tonic To Get Them Out of Winter's Rut

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
 AP Feature Service Writer

Meals, like folks, often get run down after a long, hard winter. Folks take to spring tonics or exercise. Alert cooks administer tonics to their menus, too. They give meals a new flavor fling—introduce a new sauce here, a new filling there, a new variation of an old dish.

Here's a spring brightener for a casserole dish: Mix a cup each of cooked potatoes (new potatoes, to really be springy), carrots, celery and peas. Add two cups of savory white sauce into which you have mixed two-thirds cup cheese and a teaspoon each of chopped parsley and chives. Pour the whole mixture into a buttered baking dish—rather shallow—and bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven. This gives you a dish that has plenty of minerals and vitamins, pleasing taste and color—and it will give your budget a smile.

Here's a dish that combines two old faithfuls and produces a brand new flavor: Put about two-thirds of a cup of cubed spiced beef into your regular spinach ring. Bake as usual, un-mould and then surround it with creamed asparagus, hard-cooked eggs or mushrooms. Use all three, if you're in a generous mood. Your palate will welcome them.

You can get nearly the same flavor by using plain cooked beef with 3 tablespoons chopped sweet pickles and a tablespoon of lemon juice. Take your choice.

It's easy to perk up an omelet. Give it a new kind of filling—cream of asparagus or peas, some dried beef gravy. That's a lunch-supper idea.

Here's a new dressing, TOMATO FRENCH DRESSING. Mix a teaspoon each of salt, celery seed and minced onions, one-half teaspoon of dry mustard and one-fourth teaspoon each of paprika and chopped parsley. Add one-third cup of vinegar and tomato juice, one cup salad oil and a clove of garlic. Beat with a fork until thick. Discard the garlic and store the dressing in the refrigerator. Marinate fish and vegetables for salad with some of the dressing, spread it over broiling chops, steaks and fowl.

To create some new spring flavors, try these tips: Put ham in baked apples in place of sugar. Add half a cup of shaved or cubed slightly sweet chocolate to yellow cake batter. Drop a speck of sweet basil and chives into French dressing for a

MEAT LOAF WITH LADHO STUFFING

(Serves Six)

1 1/2 lbs. ground beef
 2 lbs. lemon
 1/2 cup milk
 1/2 cup soft bread crumbs
 2 tbs. salad oil
 2 tbs. prepared mustard

To meat mixture and mix well. Place half the mixture in greased 8 1/2 x 9 1/2 inch loaf pan. Cover with potato stuffing and top with remaining meat mixture. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) one hour.

Combine meat, lemon juice, salad oil, mustard and salt; mix thoroughly. Mix egg and milk; add to bread crumbs; beat to a smooth paste; add

1 cup mashed potatoes
 1 beaten egg
 2 tbs. salad oil
 2 tbs. Spanish onion
 2 tbs. melted fat or salad oil

Combine mashed potatoes, egg, onion, fat. Add seasonings; mix thoroughly. Add bread crumbs and mix. If your taste turns toward bland flavors, reduce the spices in half because as it stands it has plenty of pep!

tossed or tomato-cucumber salad. Use maple sugar and broken pecans or butternuts for filling biscuit or dough pinwheels. Put some bay leaf into a tomato juice cocktail. Use orange juice for the liquid in an apple pie. Sprinkle crushed pineapple and coconut over the top of a cake several minutes before baking time is up.

College Park, March 29—In March and the early part of April most families welcome new hot dishes that will tempt jaded, end-of-the-winter appetites. Miss Margaret McPheeters, nutrition specialist for Maryland university extension service, has some ideas for main dishes that will bring a touch of spring to either the noon or evening meal.

Eggs are down in price now, so it's an especially good time to plan meals around them. Cheese is another favorite that will bring variety into meals at low cost. Fish suggests many unusual dishes, and both fresh and canned fish are available—thanks to quick freezing and rapid transportation.

Pleasant Surprise Nuts, too, offer a pleasant surprise when they appear in the main dish for dinner or supper. And this season, peanuts, walnuts, and pecans are especially abundant.

Miss McPheeters has taken four suggestions from the federal Bureau of Home Economics for different types of main dishes that will make use of these foods. A fluffy, golden brown soufflé is hard to surpass. Or, if you are in a hurry, omelets offer another excellent way to use eggs. Cheese, flaked fish, vegetable pulp, or ground meat can be added to either the soufflé or the omelet to make them worthy of their ranking as main dishes.

Equally Suitable Croquettes are especially suitable for a hot lunch or supper dish, and they are just as good for dinner. Make the croquettes with chopped nuts, flaked fish, eggs, or cheese—and the usual "binder" of thick sauce and "mixer" of mashed potatoes or cooked cereal. Or, if you would rather not bother with deep-fat frying, you can use fish or nuts in a baked loaf.

As a finishing touch for the croquettes and leaves, serve them with a well-seasoned sauce. Depending on the main ingredient of the loaf or croquette, you may choose an egg sauce, tomato sauce, or plain sauce.

For Broiled Meats

Here is a new partner to serve with broiled chicken, veal chops, salmon croquettes or loaf: Sprinkle lemon juice on sliced bananas and spread them with honey. Bake or broil ten minutes, or until the bananas are tender and well glazed on the top.

Glazing a Ham Loaf

To give ham loaf a glaze—and something special in the way of flavor—spread it with a mixture of crushed pineapple and cooked apricots to which you have added a little lemon juice and brown sugar. Mustard pickles are a good spread for a fish loaf.

Rest Is Great Remedy for a Damaged Heart

Persons with Diseased Hearts Should Not Exert Themselves Unduly

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A physician who finds a case of valvular disease of the heart is duty-bound to warn the patient that he should not exert himself unduly. This is good doctrine and common sense doctrine because, naturally, the heart with valvular disease has a mechanical defect and, therefore, has not as much reserve power as a normal heart.

The physician, however, is not greatly fooled as to what his patient will do about his advice. It is all right to say to a boy twelve or fourteen years old that he mustn't run too much, but if the boy is playing baseball and he hits the ball, he is going to run down to first base. This often unduly alarms parents, but a great deal of this alarm is unnecessary. The doctor is not so much worried when his advice is disregarded in this respect because he knows that the heart muscle is a wonderful organ and is capable of doing a great deal more than might be expected of it.

We have a remarkable example of the reserve power of the heart muscle in a report in the Journal of the American Medical Association. It describes a marathon runner who performed a great many strenuous athletic feats, although he had a double valvular disease of the heart.

Advised Against Racing

The runner was thirty-two years old. He was found by the medical examiners of the athletic board to have heart murmurs which indicate valvular disease, and he was warned against participation in the race. He replied that he had competed in similar races on many occasions without any ill effects. He entered the race and ran a marathon of approximately twenty-six miles in three hours and twenty minutes, when the weather was intensely warm and at an altitude of approximately 6,000 feet above sea level. His condition after the race was good and he recovered general bodily equilibrium in a shorter time than his competitors. A case of a different kind reported in the same journal indicates how completely the heart can heal after a severe, acute attack of coronary disease. Physicians usually order a patient with coronary disease to rest at least six weeks in bed. Time hangs heavy, especially after one gets to feeling better, and such a patient wants to be allowed out of bed. This case is a good example of what strict adherence to the rules will do.

Plenty of Rest
After he had been in bed in the hospital for seven weeks, he remained quietly at home for another month, and then spent six weeks in Nassau, mostly lying on the beach. After this he began very unusual physical exertion. He went skiing, he engaged in swimming and dancing. He traveled by airplane to Europe, a trip which included nineteen hours of continuous flying at an altitude of from 8,000 to 10,000 feet.

I certainly don't wish to be understood as advocating such a regimen for anybody, but there are some lessons to be learned. One is that the heart has great powers of recuperation and great reserve powers. The other is that the great remedy for the heart is rest. Even with such serious damage as comes from a coronary occlusion, the patient, by giving the heart several months of complete rest, gave the soft spot an opportunity to heal and this patient appears to have as good a heart as anybody as a consequence.

Questions and Answers

E. W.: "I have heard that going bareheaded in chilly weather causes sinus trouble. Is there any truth in this?"

Answer: You are just as likely to hear that going bareheaded cures sinus trouble. Cold may be a factor in sinus trouble, but a remote one.

Americans Impossible People, Jap Editor Says

Tokyo, March 29 (AP)—The Japanese press has leveled a general attack at United States plans to hold naval maneuvers in the western Pacific, one newspaper declaring the Americans were "tough customers" to deal with.

Yomiuri said the maneuvers were in implied threat and that "it is easy to see who is the hypothetical enemy in these Pacific games."

"Japan will not be influenced by them," the paper said, into changing her plans in China.

"The American government probably will have hysterics when and if the Wang-Chin-Wei government demands the return of foreign concessions in China," Japan, however, need not heed such noise."

"(The United States holds no concessions in China.)"

"Americans are tough customers," the paper continued. "We attempt to discuss problems in a friendly spirit and they come back with stinging fists. There's no dealing with such impossible people."

CHAPTER TWENTY

"WHAT IS this important clue you've uncovered?" I asked the reporter as he signaled a taxicab. "I searched the river with the Markham motor boat yesterday," he explained, "and after I had gone downstream for miles without finding your boat I began to wonder if someone hadn't picked it up."

"My boat?"

"Sure! The rowboat in which you got away from that kidnaper. You turned it upside down and it was full of bullet holes, but it couldn't sink. It was made of wood. And I was pretty sure the kidnaper wouldn't go after it, because it was in midstream—he might have to follow it for miles."

"But what could you tell from a rowboat?"

He gave directions to the taxi driver as we climbed in, then continued, "There'd been no report to the police, and none of the offices of the water transportation companies had a report of an overturned rowboat being picked up by any of the employees. I was about ready to give up when I saw this old man with his covered wagon. He was camped at the edge of the river, below the Rio Vista club and just above town, on the opposite side."

"And he had the boat?"

"Right. He wouldn't say so, right off. He gave me a kind of funny answer, until I told him I'd give a reward for the boat. It was inside his wagon. I guess he figured on selling it, though it wasn't worth very much with those bullet holes in it. I tied it behind my boat and towed it upstream. Then I beached it and cut out the piece of wood where one of the bullets had lodged. I took the piece to a ballistics expert. He's taking the bullet out and studying it. If our luck holds, we'll find out what gun fired that bullet, and through the gun we'll uncover the owner."

"Belzer, you're a genius."

"Call me 'Scoop,'" he said modestly.

Our cab was following the road toward the river, north of the Rio Vista club. We stopped near a farmhouse I remembered from the preceding day. "Scoop," Belzer paid the driver as we got out, and explained in an aside to me, "It goes on my expense account."

We descended the path to the river. The Markham motor boat was moored there, waiting for us. Belzer pulled one of the small, vital parts of the magneto from his pocket and put it in place. "Better than a lock," he remarked. "No body can run the boat without it."

For ten minutes it seemed that Belzer could not even run the boat with it, but the engine finally started. We swung out into deep water and headed upstream. The river was smooth. Sunlight had long since dispelled the fog. I breathed deeply of the fresh air. "There's something about the water—" I started to remark.

"Yeah, I know," said my companion. "Keep your eyes peeled. What we're looking for now is the warehouse where you were kept prisoner."

"The only thing I remember about it was a few trees overhead, and the fact that the boat was a little to go in under the piling."

"Among the piling," he corrected me. "And it couldn't have been evening versions. The long or short skirt has slimming, stitched tucks that fall into whirling, unpressed pleats below the hips. As for the blouse, see its puffed sleeves and smart front panel. Add a simple collar and a belt for a tailored style. Then, for a daintier version, make a sheer or matching blouse and sew lace or ruffling along the panel seams, cuffs and collar, or around the neck in a stand-up ruff. A wide, crushed sash would add a dramatic splash of color."

Pattern 9035 may be ordered only in misses' sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16, short skirt, requires 3½ yards 39 inch fabric; blouse, 1½ yards contrast. Price 15c.

Just order our simple basic pattern in your size, adjust it to your own figure measurements, cut it out in muslin—and you have a permanent guide to use when making all your frocks! far upstream, could it?"

"No, not far."

There weren't many places to choose from. A dirty red structure with a faded sign that read "Broom Bros." seemed the most likely. Belzer swung the boat around and drifted downstream toward it with the motor shut off. The building extended out over the water, but the water was not deep enough among the piles to float a rowboat.

"There was a high tide Tuesday night and another yesterday morning," Belzer whispered. "The water would have been a couple of feet deeper. Look like the place?"

"Yes, I believe it is. What do we do next?"

"We'll get inside."

He swung the boat inshore a hundred yards downstream. "That outfit sells potatoes," he told me. "Know anything about potatoes?"

I shook my head.

"Good. Just keep quiet. I'll be the potato buyer." He jumped ashore and tied the boat. I followed him up the bank and back along the road to the warehouse.

A not-too-bright appearing young man in dirty overalls was mending sacks on the warehouse platform. He looked up without much interest.

"Is this the Broom Bros. warehouse?" Belzer asked, and on receiving a nod, added, "We understand you've got some pretty nice spuds here."

"Guess so," said the young man. "Boss is away. You wanta look at 'em?"

"That's the general idea."

The young man stretched his legs and got up. "Ain't so much here now. Business been bad." He unlocked the door and preceded us inside.

It was the place, all right. I recognized it by the odors, even before I identified the windows. I gave Belzer a nod when he threw me an inquiring glance.

"Not very much on hand," Belzer agreed with our guide. "Anything down stairs?"

"Naw. Ain't been anything down there for years. We quit usin' boats. Trucks are cheaper."

"You mean there's no way to get to the lower floor except by the boat landing?"

"That's right. But there ain't no boat landing. It washed away in the big flood six years ago."

The reporter was feeling some of the potatoes in open sacks. "I'm afraid these aren't quite what I want," he said. "Maybe we can do some business, though. I've got some friends who are talking about starting a boat club. Think we could rent the lower floor of this warehouse?"

"Don't see why not. Boss never uses it. But it's awful dirty."

"Mind if I take a look?" Belzer asked, pausing at the head of the stairs, "while you show my friend some of your onions?"

"Go ahead," said the young man. He turned to me. "What kind of onions?"

"Why—oh—some kind for cooking."

It was a very uncomfortable ten minutes for me before Belzer returned from downstairs. I learned considerable about onions from this young man, whose mentality I seemed to have underestimated.

Belzer was frowning when he climbed back up the stairs. "You're right, it's dirty. And no plumbing down there. I was expecting too much. When will you have more potatoes on hand?"

"We're expecting more early next week."

"Good. I'll be back," he grasped my arm and guided me toward the door.

"I'll load your sack of onions for you," the young man offered.

Belzer gave me a queer look, but after the young man carried the sack down to our boat the reporter paid the bill. "Another item for the expense account, I suppose," he mumbled as he cranked the engine.

"What did you learn?"

"Plenty! I've found the headquarters of the gang involved with the Rio Vista club. I've been looking for it for a long time."

Mrs. Roosevelt "Thinks" She'll Change Easter Just for Herself

Burbank, Calif., March 29. (AP)—In her Easter bonnet, with blue cornflowers on it, Eleanor Roosevelt paid a five-minute call here.

Enroute to Seattle to visit her daughter Mrs. John Boettiger, Mrs. Roosevelt found her airline arrival delayed just long enough to miss regular plane connections north and was given a special plane after a five-minute wait.

Recalling the east's gloomy Easter weather, she remarked: "I think I'll change the Easter date for myself alone—not for the whole country as the president did with Thanksgiving—just to get a chance to wear my new Easter clothes in the sunshine."

Herbert Fleishacker Indicted for Fraud

San Francisco, March 29 (AP)—Herbert Fleishacker, west coast financial power was indicted by a federal grand jury here on charges of misappropriation of funds and the causing of a false bank entry.

The indictment charged that Fleishacker on Oct. 22, 1937 caused $55,100 to be withdrawn from the account of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company in the Anglo California National Bank, and that he put to his own use ten cashier's checks into which he was alleged to have converted the money.

Fleishacker was president of the Anglo bank from 1911 until late in 1938 when he resigned. He and an associate acquired most of the assets of Pacific Mail in 1926. The company gradually was liquidated. The indictment charged Fleishacker was not empowered to draw on Pacific Mail's account in October of 1937.

14 Convicts Balked In Escape Plan

Montgomery, Ala., March 29 (AP)—Warden Earl Wilson disclosed here that fourteen Kilby prison convicts had been balked in a fantastic plan for a 300-yard rope ride to freedom.

Wilson gave this account of the incident:

Four months ago the convicts started fashioning fourteen elaborate contrivances to enable one man at a time to ride a rope strung from the prison roof, across the wall 100 yards away and on to the nearest tree, 200 yards more. These devices included pulleys and brakes to check the speed of the slide.

Last night an automobile drove around the prison and someone threw a baseball over the wall, with a light string attached to the ball. The convicts were to have gotten the string and taken it to the roof, through an upper window where the bars were out. Once on a roof they planned to use the string to pull the end of the rope to them.

The convicts apparently saw guards recover the ball and abandoned the plan. The automobile sped away and the warden today had not located the plotting prisoners.

Cornelius Ryan in Radcliffe's Camp

Baltimore, March 29 (AP)—A former enemy of Senator Millard E. Tydings has become his ally in supporting Senator George L. Radcliffe in his campaign for renomination.

Tydings, it became known here buried the political hatchet last night with Cornelius Ryan, president of the Patuxent Democrat club of Prince Georges county.

Ryan opposed Tydings in the bitter 1938 "purge" campaign. Tydings beat Rep. David J. Lewis in the primary and was reelected by a landslide vote.

Radcliffe was Tydings' campaign manager then. Now Tydings is managing Radcliffe's campaign for reelection and Ryan has agreed to work for him.

"Maybe politics makes strange bedfellows," Ryan said, "but we come together in a good cause when we meet to work for the renomination and election of Senator Radcliffe."

Ryan's rival faction, the county organization headed by Rep. Lansdale G. Sasser, is supporting Radcliffe's primary opponent, Democratic National Committeeman Howard Bruce.

Fish Demands U. S. Recall Daniels from Mexico City Post

Washington, March 29 (AP)—A demand that the United States recall its ambassador to Mexico, Josephus Daniels on the grounds that he had "failed to properly represent or protect our interests" was made in the House by Rep. Fish (R-NY), member of the Foreign Affairs Committee.

Rep. Cooley (D-NC) countered the New Yorker's demand with the assertion that Daniels "has discharged his duties with great courage and firmness but likewise with great ability and tolerance."

"Everyone knows of his splendid service to his country in the last World War," Cooley said, with reference to Daniels' service as secretary of the navy.

Fish declared that the "spineless policy" of the Roosevelt administration had resulted in Mexico seizing 1,500,000 acres of timber land owned by Americans. He said that President Roosevelt threatened sanctions against Japan "while fawning on the Red dictatorship in Mexico and practically ignoring the plundering of our own citizens by our next door neighbor."

Fish also demanded that the United States stop buying silver from Mexico.

Clubs Protest Site For Annapolis Armory

Annapolis, Md., March 29 (AP)—Representatives of civic clubs, women's clubs and the Chamber of Commerce met here to organize opposition to the new armory site chosen by Maj. Gen. Reckord of the Maryland National Guard.

Gen. Reckord will hold a public meeting here tomorrow to hear protests against the site he selected on Constitution avenue.

The service clubs and Chamber of Commerce named Noah A. Hillman and George Wolfel, attorneys, as spokesmen for the groups opposed to the Constitution avenue site.

Previously, the clubs had separately gone on record against the guard commander's choice, pointing out it was in the heart of a choice residential section half a mile from the grouped state office buildings and the state capital.

The protest gathering today approved as first choice for the armory site a plot on Carroll street directly in back of the new state office building. Second choice was a site on St. John street just north of the office building.

Harris Cagers Nip Candy Kitchen 41 to 36

Kitcheners Bow To Frostburgers In Tourney Till

Radio Shop, Farrady Post, Universal Shinglers Also Win

Frostburg State cagers, playing under the banner of the Harris Restaurant, trimmed Sam's Candy Kitchen 41 to 36 in the final and feature game of the second session of the South Atlantic Association A.A.U. basketball tournament last night at the SS Peter & Paul school gym. The game was the first of the tourney in the unlimited 'A' division.

In the other games Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion of Frostburg defeated the Loyal Order of Moose 49 to 38 in the 145-pound class. Armbruster's Radio Shop put on a garrison finish to nip the Beall High Varsity of Frostburg in the 130-pound division, 36-25, and the Universal Shinglers mauled the Devon A. C. outfit of Lake in the same division by a 36-18 count.

Both the Radio Shop-Beall Varsity and the Harris-Candy Kitchen games were nip and tuck, with the latter luff getting the nod because of the faster brand of basketball displayed by the two teams. The Farrady Post-Moose battle was close for two periods but the Legionnaires stepped away in the last half to turn the game into a rout.

The Kitcheners battled the Mountain City boys on even terms for the first two frames, lagged in the early part of the third but came back after trailing by 12 markers to pull up within three points of the Restaurants and make things mighty interesting.

Wagner Is Hero

Joe Wagner was the hero of the battle from the winners' standpoint. Entering the game as a sub midway in the second half with his team on the short end of a 14-9 score, the speedy cager proceeded to turn the tide of the battle by meshing three quick goals to deadlock the score at 15-all at the end of the round.

The Frostburgers gathered 10 markers while holding the Kitcheners to four in the following round to hold a 25-19 advantage at the halfway mark. With 1:40 to go in the third heat the Candy Kitchen aggregation pulled within four markers of the winners at 21-27, but Wagner again came through with a bucket from under the hoop to restore the confidence of the Restaurants.

Radio Shop Rallies

The Harris crew managed to stay in front the rest of the way but the South Riders continued to dump buckets and prevent the victors from mounting the score. Wagner and Joe Thomas with 13 and 12 points, respectively, paced the Harris team while Roy Whitman with 12 counters was the losers' best.

After trailing for more than three quarters the Radio Shop crew rallied in the final session to score more points in that round than in the previous three and trim the Beall Varsity team. The Radios were behind 7-3 at the first quarter, 13-8 at the half and 18-13 at the end of three quarters.

Center Don Fisher's basket, with three minutes gone in the fourth period put the Radio Shop ahead for the first time during the game at 19-18 and they stayed there through the remainder of the tussle.

The remarkable shooting of Oberlin Chaney of the Farrady Post spelled defeat for the local Moose club in the opening game. The Legion forward tallied 10 baskets, pocketing seven of them in the first half. Ken Sherman was high for the vanquished quint with 14 counters.

In the third game on the program the Universal Shinglers, composed of players of this year's Port Hill squad, proved too much for the Devon Club. The Shinglers were ahead 9-1, 19-3 and 28-13 at the quarters. Wally Ulery paced the victors with a dozen markers while Bill Rogers captured high scoring honors for the losers with seven tallies. Touring Pros Turn in Record Breaking Scores Metz, Guldahl and Mangrum Turn in 64's in Asheville Tourney

By BILL BONT

Asheville, N. C., March 29 (AP)—The par 70 shooters were strictly out of the running today as the country's touring golf pros took the Asheville Country Club course and neglected to put it together again in the first round of the "Land of the Sky" open tournament.

What they did put together, however, were some of the lowest scores of the winter tour. When Dick Metz came in with a six-under-par 64 for a new competitive record, it looked pretty good, but before the afternoon was over, both score and record had been equalled in turn by Ralph Guldahl and Lloyd Mangrum.

All Metz was left with was the distinction of having been first home, and the honor of having the day's low score for the first time, a sizzling 30 that was six under standard figures.

The best score for the "back nine" was posted by Frank Walsh. The Rumson (N.J.) veteran went around in three-under-par 31 that gave him a tie with P. G. A. champion Henry Picard at 65.

This amazing exhibition of par busting took the play away from Ben Hogan for the first time since his opening round in the North-South Championship at Pinehurst. Even so, the little ex-Texan didn't lose his touch completely. He and Open Champion Byron Nelson wound up all even with 67s that were three better than regulation but good enough only for a tie for sixth place.

Jimmy Demaret of Houston, Texas, the No. 1 money winner, back in competition after an absence of several weeks, shot a 68 which was matched by Jug McSpaden of Winchester, Mass., Lawson Little, Leonard Dodson of Kansas City, and Herman Keiser of Akron, O. Others to better par were Lon Walper of Washington, D. C., Steve Wurga of New York, and Dutch Harrison of Little Rock, Ark., with 69s.

Metz' 30 was an amazing exhibition. After starting off with a par, he birdied the next four holes, two of them par 5s, and topped that off with an eagle three on the 484-yard eighth. He hit the green there with his second shot, and rolled in a 25-foot putt.

W.V.U. Wrestlers Are Eliminated

Robert McArdle was tossed by Dale Hanson, Minnesota, in 7:45 with a body press and bar arm lock.

Goodman Still Mark for Jinx

Tampa, Fla., March 29 (AP)—Ival Goodman, the Cincinnati Reds' crack right fielder, still is a target for injuries.

The slugger, who was lost for a good part of last season as the result of an injury in the All-Star game, was left behind when the Reds went to Havana recently, for fear of something happening.

So yesterday he was "pinned" on the back of his right hand by one of Cliff Melton's fast balls and will be on the shelf a few days.

STANDING OF CLUBS
The Keegan Gassers trounced the Weber Planers 59 to 28 tonight while the Sam's Candy Kitchen easily downed Columbus Lodge 44 to 19.

Melvin "Newt" Henry showing the South End boys how basketball should be played led the winners in scoring with 17 points and stood out on the defense. "Bus" Miller and Bobby Butts each scored ten points to take runnerup honors. Miller also played a remarkable floor game.

The Weber Planers who defeated Sam's Candy Kitchen last week was expected to make the game interesting, but Keegans completely outclassed them in all departments. Keegans were out in front at half time 23 to 8 and continued to increase their lead as the second half went on. In the closing minutes of the game Keegans put on a passing attack that had the fans guessing where the ball was. John Blades and Dick Blake led the Weber team in scoring with 10 and 7 points respectively.

The Candy Kitchen had little trouble with the Columbus Lodge scoring at will throughout the game. Roy Whitman was the winners leading scorer with 13 points while only playing a little over a half of the game. Vernon Willard had running up honors with ten points. Armand Pannone was the losers leading scorer and outstanding defense man. The Candy Kids were leading at half time 23 to 8. A large crowd witnessed both games.

Frostburg To Hold Baseball Meeting Sunday

American Legion May Sponsor Team in Bi-State League

Frostburg, March 29—An effort to revive interest in organized baseball here, which has been lagging despite the fact Frostburg has always been a red-hot baseball town, will be made by Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion.

Frank Powers, chairman of the Legion baseball committee, announced today a meeting, open to all baseball players and others interested in the diamond sport here will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Legion Hall on Mechanic street.

For the past several years, Frostburg was represented in the Bi-State League by the Merchants, sponsored by leading businessmen of the town, but this season the Merchants failed to reorganize.

The American Legion then decided to step in and make an effort to form a club with the hope of being admitted to the Bi-State circuit. The Legion believes that with a little cooperation, a strong team can be lined up.

All players and fans have been urged to attend the session because if this movement is a failure, Frostburg will probably be left out in the cold this season.

Bi-State officials have indicated that the loop will operate with four clubs this season unless at least two more outfits notify them of intentions to file for membership before the end of the month. At the March 14 meeting of the circuit, it was decided to leave two franchises open until April 1 with no further extension to be granted.

Keyser May Seek Beth

Westvale, Hyndman and Cumberland retained their franchises by posting franchise deposits while Midland was readmitted to the circuit March 14 after failing to send representatives to earlier sessions. Reports coming from Keyser indicate that Keyser Moose Lodge No. 662 will sponsor a club and arrange to enter the loop before the April 1 deadline. Several weeks ago, the Keyser Moose notified Bi-State officials "complications" had developed and it is still uncertain whether these problems have been ironed out.

At the March 14 session, no date for another meeting was set by the league but if two or more applications are filed before the April 1 deadline, a confab probably will be arranged. Officers of the league have been instructed to draw up a schedule for four clubs and this card will become official April 1 unless two more teams are admitted to membership.

Rifle and Pistol Club Meet Carded

Frostburg, March 29 — The Frostburg Rifle and Pistol club will meet the Frederick Rifle and Pistol club in a shooting match Sunday, 2 p. m., at the Hakerstown Armory, this being the first out-of-town match in which the Frostburg team has taken part.

The team will consist of the following marksmen: Henry R. Yates, president of the team; Joseph Freeland, Howard Brode, Francis Cunningham, Gurney Beaman, William Johnson, Harry Morgan, and two honorary members, Arthur Hoffa and John Golden.

Pittsburgh College Nine Starts Tour

Pittsburgh, March 29 (AP) — A squad of eighteen University of Pittsburgh baseball players leave tomorrow for a four-game series with southern teams.

The players will drill Saturday at Staunton, Va., play Duke at Durham, N. C., next Monday, Wake Forest on Wednesday; Virginia at Charlottesville on Thursday and Maryland at College Park on Saturday.

The Dukes beat the Panthers last spring in two games, 13-6 and 19-3.

Prairie Pups' Purpose

Prairie dogs apparently have a purpose in life. Recent studies at the Texas Cooperative Wildlife Research unit, supported by the American Wildlife Institute, show that the mounds thrown up by these rodents cover less than 1 percent of the total area.

In sample plots under observation, gophers threw up an average of 99 mounds per acre each month, or nearly four tons of earth per acre each year. This natural cultivation of the soil is thought to be beneficial.

Loan Sharks Hit By Research Expert

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. March 29, (P)—A challenge to "get rid of the loan sharks" by advertising proper interest rates on loans was given the Bankers Association for Consumer Credit today.

Dr. William Foster, economical research expert, said in an address that despite rigid regulation in twenty-seven states, "loan sharks" still collect "illegal charges amounting to more than $100,000,000. Their volume has increased in recent years from $24,000,000 to $76,000,000."

As reasons for this, Foster cited "commercial banks' failure to advertise proper interest rates on loans, and a practice on the part of these banks to operate in the small loan field where they cannot operate at a profit."

Foster asserted that "all legal lending agencies have one thing in common; do all you can to rid the country of loan sharks and to curb the expansion by the federal government into money lending fields."

"There is room enough for all legal lending agencies," said Foster, "and the interest of borrowers as well as lenders will be best served if each agency finds his best field and stays in it instead of expanding to others where other agencies can operate more profitably."

John Brown Dies

John Brown, 83, died about 4 o'clock this morning at the Hazel McGilvery hospital, Meyersdale, where he was taken Wednesday night. He had not been well for some time but his condition became critical after he fell down a flight of stairs a few days ago. The shock of the fall brought on complications which caused his death.

Mr. Brown was born at Fort Necessity. His grandfather built the old stone residence near the site of the fort, on the National Highway, in 1828. It is now occupied, as it has been for many years, by the Fort Necessity Museum. As a young man, Mr. Brown moved to Salisbury, Pa., where he resided for about fifty years. Jones Tells of Punishment by Kangaroo Court

Sutton, W. Va., March 29. (AP)—Waltman Jones, former prisoner of the Braxton county jail testifying today in John Dolan's $10,000 damage suit declared he was forced by a "Kangaroo court" to stand on one foot with the other chained to the bars of his cell for more than an hour.

Jones, one of several ex-inmates called by the plaintiff in his action against Sheriff R. W. Brosius and the National Surety Corporation, said the punishment was inflicted because of his failure to pay a "Kangaroo" fine.

The witness said when his pocketbook was returned to him the day of his liberation, the dollar it originally contained was gone.

He said he asked the turnkey, Curt Ellison, about it and was told it had been paid on Jones' "fine." Jones said he afterward complained to Sheriff Brosius and the money was returned to him.

Dwight James, Sutton resident, told of a conversation he had with Ellison in which the witness quoted Ellison as saying: "If he didn't have a 'Kangaroo court' here they would have to find somebody else to run the jail."

James also quoted the turnkey

Woman Walks on All Fours for Six Months

Edmonton, Alta., March 29. (AP)—The story of an Eskimo woman who lived for more than six months at her Arctic home on Baillie island with the skin of her back so severely burned she was unable to straighten up from an animal-like position on hands and feet was told here by Chief Pilot Bob Randall of the MacKenzie Air Service.

He flew her from Baillie island, 250 miles northeast of Akavik, to Akavik on an ambulance flight Sunday. Physicians there thought they could save her life.

Other Eskimos at Baillie island told Randall the woman received the burns when a blubber lamp overturned and set fire to her clothing. The intense cold in her gloom home apparently held back natural healing, and unable to stand the pain of straightening her back, she developed the habit of going around on all fours.

666 Furloughed During February, Report Reveals

Industrial Activity Slumps Slightly Compared to January

Employment and payrolls for Cumberland's seventeen major industries were off in February compared with January, but were somewhat ahead of the figures for February, 1939.

This is according to the figures appearing yesterday in the monthly report of the Chamber of Commerce.

The February payroll was $400,000 less than the January payroll, but February included only four paydays for many of the industries, compared with five in January.

Employment Drops by 666
Employment fell off by 666 in February compared to January, but ran 104 ahead of February a year ago.

During the past year, each monthly report showed a substantial increase over the corresponding month for 1938, because 1938 was a bad year for Cumberland industry, while 1939 was fairly prosperous.

If the monthly reports for 1940 can keep even or slightly ahead of the 1939 figures, Cumberland will be far from unfortunate.

February Figures

Figures in yesterday's report are:

EMPLOYED
Feb., 1940	13,925
Feb., 1939	13,821
Jan., 1940	14,591
PAYROLLS
Feb., 1940	$1,594,793.95
Feb., 1939	$1,516,644.19
Jan., 1940	$1,917,646.51

Retail trade for February as checked by William L. Sherman, public accountant, showed an increase of 9.8 percent over February, 1939. In January, a 7.26 percent increase was shown over January, 1939.

Former Resident Gets State Job

Norwood B. Orrick Named by Walsh

Baltimore, March 29 (AP)—William C. Walsh, Maryland attorney general, announced the appointment today of Norwood B. Orrick, 31, a native of Cumberland, as assistant attorney general.

Orrick, who will receive $5,500 annual salary, succeeds H. Vernon Emy, who said he would devote his time to private law practice.

The new assistant attorney general received his degree from the University of Virginia Law School in 1932 and was admitted to the Maryland Bar in 1933.

Since then Orrick has been with a Baltimore law firm.

Banquet Attracts Over 300 Guests

Good Fellowship Club Has First 1940 Feed

Shrimp, oysters, roast pig and other such delicacies comprised the menu at the first party of the Good Fellowship Club of 1940 last night at Odd Fellows Hall, Virginia avenue.

Three hundred guests were present. George Henderson was toastmaster and introduced the following speakers: Estel C. Kelley, Dr. Charles B. Shoemaker, Myers G. Light, Dr. J. H. Spicer, James Orr, J. B. Blacker and James Shambaugh of Hagerstown.

The club was organized in 1933 with twenty-two members. In April, 1937, the organization was incorporated with the following officers: C. F. Hare, president; Harry Wagoner, vice-president; T. C. Fuller, secretary; J. E. Minnick, treasurer; Lloyd Scheuring, C. C. Wolford and Roy Hoff, trustees; and C. C. Campbell and R. J. Collins, directors.

Four parties are held each year. The membership of the organization now totals around 400.

12 Young Republicans Plan Membership Drive in Ridgeley

Twelve members of the recently organized Franford District Young Republican Club, of Ridgeley, last night held their second meeting and discussed plans for a membership drive.

Walter Ridgely, elected president of the club at its initial meeting two weeks ago, presided at last night's session in the Ridgeley bank building and introduced G. E. Hiser, justice of the peace.

Mr. Hiser spoke on past victories of the Republican party and asserted that the Republicans were coming back into their own once again. He urged the charter members of the club to enlist every young Republican in Ridgeley in the new organization.

President Ridgely reported last night that the new club was progressing and that the membership drive being planned should show results. The next meeting of the group will be held Tuesday, April 2, in Mr. Hiser's office.

America Acquires 16 New Citizens

Six Fail Exams, Must Try Again

Allegheny county and Free America today had sixteen new citizens as the result of yesterday's naturalization examination at the court house. Six candidates failed to make the grade.

The sixteen successful applicants yesterday were admitted to the rights and privileges of citizens of the United States after being examined by P. J. Phillips, chief examiner of the U. S. Department of Labor, Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan, and Associate Judge William A. Huster.

The successful candidates were Roland Andrews, John William Rowley, Mrs. Elizabeth Rowley, Albino Nicolato, Caroline Domencia Nicolato, Nickola Marcinkovic, Sally Judenberg, Katherine Hulka Studenick, Idegonada Biagi Silvestri, Peter Schumacher, Vincenzo Squillace, Celestia Mary Conte Mallozzi, George Wallace, Nelle Margaret Jenkins, Morgan Reynolds, and Anna Stangle.

The examinations are designed to show whether the applicants are familiar with the workings of the American form of government and the highlights of American history.

The six who failed to qualify at yesterday's examination, will continue their studies in weekly classes conducted by J. Hodge Smith and Thomas B. Finan, local attorneys.

The judges agreed that most of yesterday's candidates were unusually well prepared for citizenship, a fact attributed to the weekly classes voluntarily conducted by Attorneys Smith and Finan. The two attorneys started their classes last November.

Merchants To Discuss Donations Problem

The mercantile bureau of the Chamber of Commerce is making arrangements for a smoker Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the Cumberland Brewery.

A plan will be discussed at this meeting to provide a more adequate economical method of handling solicitations for advertising and donations from local merchants.

One plan proposed is that contributions be made to a fund to be placed in the hands of trustees. Contributions would be made from this fund, eliminating appeals to the individual merchants.

Mrs. Sophia M. Irvine, wife of Mayor Harry Irvine, who collapsed March 17 at her home, 300 Pulaski street, remained "fairly good" last night at Memorial hospital.

Mrs. Irvine's collapse was in the nature of a paralytic stroke.

Cumberland Girls Run for Office At Maryland U.

Doris McFarland, Martha Rainalter, Among Candidates

College Park, Md., March 29 (AP)—Two dozen University of Maryland students were nominated today for eight offices in the annual spring election of the Student Government Association.

Among the "campus politicians" are two Cumberland girls, Doris McFarland, who is running for secretary of the Women's League, and Martha Rainalter, candidate for treasurer of the Women's League.

Only one candidate, Norman (Reds) Miller, of Hyattsville, football manager who was nominated for student body vice-president, is unopposed. However, additional candidates may be nominated by petition before the April 1 deadline.

The primary election is scheduled for April 10 and the final balloting will be held a day later.

Two Out for President

Two were nominated for president at the open student government meeting. They are Gene Ochsenreiter, of Chevy Chase, and John Reckord, of Baltimore, both popular junior class members.

Ochsenreiter was chairman of the Junior Prom and is a member of the basketball and track teams. Reckord, nephew of Major General Milton A. Reckord, adjutant general of Maryland, is an officer in the university R.O.T.C. unit.

The student association lifted a ban on stump speeches and it was predicted the campaign would be wide open, although the politicians are prohibited from spending money to gain office.

Ridgeley Tries Crash Drivers

Cumberland Motorist Gets the Works

Echoes of Celine pay day were heard before Justice-of-the-Peace C. A. Jewell in Ridgeley yesterday. Two young men, both involved in automobile accidents early yesterday morning, were tried on charges of drunken and reckless driving.

Paul L. Geetz, 24, of 451 Bond street, Cumberland, was found guilty on both charges. He was sent to jail for ninety days when unable to pay $125 in fines; his car was impounded for six months; and his right to drive was revoked for six months.

The car Geetz was driving collided with another beyond Dixie Inn on the Port Ashby road.

Ralph A. Steele, about 27, of 121 Bowery street, Frostburg, was fined $25 and costs for reckless driving, but was found not guilty of drunken driving.

His car crossed the center line, according to testimony, and hit another car on the mountain outside Ridgeley on the Port Ashby road.

Chief of Police C. V. Barnard made both arrests.

"King Genius" Wins Field Trial Event

Point Pleasant, W. Va., March 29 (AP)—A rangy pointer "King Genius," owned by Curtis Dawley of Charleston, won the spring winners' dog stake for the four field trial associations today.

The runnerup was "Echo," a pointer owned and handled by Curtis Miles of Cleveland, O., who also handled Dawley's dog.

Old timers recalled that "King Genius" won the first winter stake held at Point Pleasant five years ago.

Ten dogs were entered in the competition, winners from previous events conducted by the Miami Valley Amateur Field Trial Association of Dayton, O., the Valley Bird Dog Club of Portsmouth, O., Southern Ohio Field Trial Association of Cincinnati, O., and the West Virginia Amateur Field Trial Association of Charleston, Huntington and Point Pleasant.

The judges were William T. Windsor of Akron, O., and J. Horace Lytle of Dayton.

Puppy stakes for dogs whelped since January 1, 1939 will be held tomorrow. Eight puppies have been entered in the event, which will close the two-day trials.

Skiers Find Snow Patch Offering Week-End Fun

Believe it or not, but members of the Western Maryland Ski Club discovered a snow patch yesterday that promises to afford another good week-end of skiing.

This unusual snow patch is the result of a huge drift that piled up on the side of a hill just off Route 40 west of Grantsville.

The snow is still from two to five feet deep and offers a fast, steep run of more than 100 yards and a longer slower run along the side of the hill.

The "corn snow" (small icy grains) composing the drift is fast no matter how warm the weather.

The snow patch can be reached by walking from Route 40 in the first valley west of Grantsville. It lies on the opposite side of the highway from the mining operations there.

Practically all the snow has vanished in Garrett county now. The maximum temperature in Cumberland yesterday was 67.

Council To End Its Fiscal Year This Morning

New Council Meets Informally Tomorrow To Discuss Plans

Mayor Harry Irvine and the members of the City Council will hold their last meeting of the fiscal year this morning at 10 a. m. in council chamber.

Purpose of the meeting is to pass the payroll and complete any unfinished business to be brought to their attention. City employees will be paid Monday, it was announced yesterday.

Tentative plans have been made to call a special informal meeting tomorrow to discuss plans for the new fiscal year. Only new comers to the council circle will be James Orr who succeeds Harry A. Manley.

What position Orr will hold in the council has not yet been determined, although it is pretty definite he will be either police and fire commissioner or finance commissioner, probably the former.

Monday, the mayor and council will consider a number of applications for city jobs. The mayor and council have not as yet discussed publicly the possibility of any important changes.

Kave was thrown from the automobile. He was treated at Miners hospital, in Frostburg and released.

Parking Meter Robbed
Police early yesterday morning found the back of a parking meter on Pershing street piled open and the nickels missing.

The meter was reportedly robbed about 12:30 a. m.

TO SING HERE—This is the Men's Glee Club of Duke university shown on the steps of the university's famous chapel as they prepared to leave on the longest tour in Duke glee club history. News Pictures Stir Fishermen; 200 Turn Out To Get Licenses

A layout of pictures in Friday's News captioned "Calling All Fishermen," helped bring some 200 anglers swarming into the clerk of the court's office yesterday for licenses.

The News pictures told the story of stocking 18,000 fighting trout in Garrett county streams and 3,000 in Allegheny county.

Yesterday's turn out at the clerk of the court's office was the largest in some time. Many of the customers said they had seen the News pictures and decided it was time to act. The season opens Monday.

One fishing enthusiast was worried about the situation. He was Vincent Ingram, well-known Cumberland man and member of the American Legion, was afraid that "too many people had got ahead of him."

"At this rate," commented Ingram, "somebody is going to be out of luck. The number on my license is 2,608 and they are still coming."

Ingram estimated that there would probably be at least 3,000 fishermen going after 3,000 trout in Allegheny county when the season opened.

"That makes one trout apiece—if you're lucky," Ingram declared.

But Mr. Ingram seems to have forgotten about Garrett county. Maybe they can't be caught, but there's fish in them there mountain streams.

85 Census Takers Needed in County

To Be Selected By Tests Today

Over 100 candidates are competing for some eighty or eighty-five jobs as census takers in Allegheny county.

The candidates for the jobs showed up yesterday for the first session of the two-day school at City Hall.

Officials in charge of the school are Hugh M. Frampton, district supervisor, aided by Mrs. Stella G. Bruce, assistant district supervisor.

A movie will be shown this morning at 11 a. m. at the Port Hill high school auditorium to acquaint the candidates with the type of work to be done.

Following the showing of the movie, candidates for the jobs will be given a test at the school. The selection of workers will be made on the basis of the test.

Mr. Frampton said there will be twenty-five census takers in Garrett county; seventy in Montgomery county; fifty-five in Frederick; and seventy in Washington.

Work will start Tuesday. The job will probably take a month or six weeks.

Two Accident Victims Taken to Hospital

A five-year-old Rawlings youth was painfully injured early last night when he fell against a saw-saw while playing near his home.

George Llewellyn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Llewellyn, suffered injuries about the thigh in the fall. He was brought here to Allegheny hospital and admitted. His condition was "satisfactory" late last night.

Another mishap victim, Mrs. Adelaide Beebout, 27, wife of Charles Beebout, Allegheny Inn, sustained lacerations about her right hand yesterday afternoon when she fell on a broken bottle.

Allegheny hospital attaches reported that Mrs. Beebout, a photograph saleswoman, fell while at work at Eckhart Mines. She was released from the hospital after being treated.

Thrown from Car Near Lion Spring
Ralph E. Kave, 220 Virginia avenue, was slightly injured Thursday night when the car in which he was riding skidded and overturned on a curve near the Lion Spring east of Frostburg.

Kave was thrown from the automobile. He was treated at Miners hospital, in Frostburg and released.

Give Roads Back To County, Says Farm Bureau

Plans Are Made For Membership Drive in August

The Allegheny County Farm Bureau, meeting yesterday at the Lutheran Church on Bedford street, went on record as favoring the return of county roads to the county commissioners, rather than having the State Roads Commission responsible for them.

The farm group also decided to launch a membership campaign during the week of Aug. 5, with a goal of seventy-five new members.

More farm-to-market roads were recommended. A committee consisting of Arthur Hoffa, Leroy Frazer, and Gilbert Miller was appointed to look into the possibility of establishing a lime manufacturing plant in the county. There is none at present, except for small kilns owned by individual farmers. The nearest lime plant is near Hyndman, in Pennsylvania.

A hospital insurance plan was discussed, and Mrs. Susan Frey, of Gaithersburg, the state home and community chairman, will meet with a committee at a later date.

The bureau decided to sponsor planning groups for land use, and to take steps to set up a soil conservation district for Allegheny county. A program for use of lime on pastures fields was also accepted.

President R. C. Wilson presided. Wilber Smith, of Frederick, the state organizer, was principal speaker and advisor.

Former Official Of B&O Dies

Michael J. Cahill Began as Messenger

Word has been received of the death Tuesday of Michael J. Cahill, former division superintendent of the B&O railroad here.

Mr. Cahill, who retired six years ago, rose from messenger boy to the presidency of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad.

He was employed by the B&O for twenty-nine years, advancing steadily through the positions of telegraph operator, station agent, car distributor, train dispatcher, trainmaster, assistant superintendent, superintendent and general superintendent in the Pennsylvania and Maryland divisions.

Cahill was born in Lexington, Richmond county, Ohio, and went to work for the B&O at seventeen as a messenger, carrying most of his messages on the back of his father's horse.

After twenty-nine years with the B&O he moved to the Seaboard Air Line Railway, first for two years as general manager, then from 1922 to 1929 as vice-president in charge of operations.

He was holding the latter position when elected chairman of the board of directors of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas in 1928. He was elected president in 1930, resigned in 1934.

Mr. Cahill had been a director of the Chemical Bank and Trust Co. and a member of various railroad and economic groups. His New York clubs included the Metropolitan, Union League and Bankers and Midway.

In 1902 he married Ethel White, of the Canadian Province of New Brunswick.

Welding Torch Explodes, B&O Shopmen Burned

Two B&O workers were treated Thursday at Memorial hospital for painful burns inflicted when the acetylene torch they were using exploded.

Karl D. Bachman, 426 North Centre street, an electrician, was burned about the face and both hands. Leroy Loudermilk, 618 Montgomery avenue, a machinist, was burned about the face.

The hospital reported that the two men were using the torch in the cab of an engine at the round house when it exploded. Both were released from the hospital after being treated.

WSAL, Salisbury Radio Station, Ordered Off

Washington, March 29 (AP)—The Federal Communications commission today ordered radio station WSAL at Salisbury, Md., off the air at 3 a. m., next Sunday.

In its final order in the case, the commission affirmed, with minor revisions, a previous "proposed report" stating that Frank M. Stearns, licensee of WSAL, made false and fraudulent statements and representations concerning the financing of station construction.

The commission further found that the rights granted Stearns by the license were "transferred, assigned, or otherwise disposed of" without the commission's consent.

Births

Mr. and Mrs. John Roeder, 214 Columbia street, announce the birth of a son yesterday morning at Memorial hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Rice, of Christie road, announce the birth of a daughter yesterday morning at Allegheny hospital.
